FOOD SHOW IS EXCEEDING ALL EXPECTATIONS

Large Crows There First Day; To Continue Tonight

The first day of Dixon's fourth annual Pure Food Show, held in the Countryman Building, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, was a success from every view point. The throng yesterday exceeded the fairest dream of the exhibitors for the opening day. Yesterday afternoon people began to arrive and adults continued to come all afternoon and last night the hall was packed from the time the doors opened until the Goddess of Supplies has distributed her wares. The visitors were not disappointed for the show was even more than it has been advertised to be. Everlasting impressions were left on the visitors as they passed from one booth to another receiving various food products offered. The whole crowd was enthusiastic and deeply interested. A great many of the people who visited the food show on the first day will return again. They realize that in taking advantage of the many things offered they will be helped in the end.

School Children There.
The school children began to arrive about 3:30 and in little over an hour there was close to 1,000 school children in the hall. The management had not anticipated such a crowd of youngsters, but immediately took hold and every child was cared for. It was impossible to do very much with them so for a time they were left. Hey Brothers started to give ice cream cones to the children, but it soon became necessary to stop this as the children were crowding and these were distributed later, after some of them had been sent home. A great many small favors were distributed to the children and as they passed out of the doors on their way home a big orange was placed in their hands. It was really hard to send the youngsters home for they were having such a wonderful time and the exhibitors were enjoying themselves as much.

Many Fine Exhibits.
On entering the hall and going around to the right, one will first come to the booth of Mr. Loooli, who shows samples of practically every known make of cheese. Next comes the Curran Grocery, who is showing a complete line of Monarch brand of goods; Flemming and Richardson are showing the famous None-Such brand; Arnold Brothers are serving the frankfurters made from their famous; The Borden Company have one of the attractive booths, showing the complete line of merchandise that is manufactured; F. C. Sprout and the Dixon Grocery & Market have three booths in one, and are displaying the nationally known brand of goods of Club House; H. Korn Baking Company have one of the attractive booths showing their famous line of bread and cake.

Next come two booths that have real value and merit and are educational; The Coors, who are showing the value of pasteurized milk compared with that of other kinds of milk; the City Meat Market has as fine display of meat as one would care to view and it is interesting and educational. Hey Brothers Ice Cream Co. are showing molds and explaining holds of ice cream and it is possible for them to mold ice cream into any design. Iren Biscuit Co. are next with their famous line of crackers, biscuits, and cookies. B. S. Pearsall Buttery Co. showing butter and oleomargarine; Deier bakery has one of the attractive booths and has drawn a great many people to view their fine display of bread, cakes and cookies; Dixon Wholesale Fruit Company have one of the big spaces and are demonstrating a number of things that the public is familiar with. Sterling Wholesale Grocery Co. are showing their famous Captain Kidd brand of goods.

BOXING ON SIDES OF BRIDGE BEFORE CITY COMMISSION

May Take Action Soon to Protect Clothing of Pedestrians.

Complaints from pedestrians on the Galena avenue bridge, whose clothing has been soiled by the slush thrown by passing vehicles and autos from the floor of the driveway onto the sidewalks on both sides, led to the presentation of the situation before the city council at its regular weekly session Tuesday evening. Commissioner Campbell introduced the subject and said that he had received numerous complaints from pedestrians this winter.

The commissioner was strongly in favor of erecting plank boxing on either side of the bridge driveway, for the protection of foot passengers. He said that the discomfort prevailed during the summer as well as the winter, and was particularly noticeable after a heavy rain. The entire council favored taking some steps as soon as possible to relieve the situation and it was decided for the time being to have the bridge cleaned of snow and slush by the street department.

Commissioner Charles E. Miller of the department of public health and safety turned over the license issued to George Richards to conduct a soft drink parlor known as the Palace on West First street. The commissioner stated that the license had been voluntarily surrendered by the proprietor at the request of the commissioner. Mayor Palmer favored the revocation of the license that the matter become a part of the record of the department of public health and safety. The license was issued in December by the council proceedings but no action was taken other than the return of the license to the clerk.

A resolution providing for the transfer of $1500 from the general to the contingent fund and the temporary transfer of the sum of $1200 from the general to the public library fund, was passed.

The application of the Dixon Machine works to erect a sign in the alley in the rear of 212 West Main avenue was referred to the commissioner of public health and safety.

The board of local improvements voted to issue a voucher in the sum of $5000 in favor of the National Construction company of Davenport, Ia., who are installing the west end sewer system.

WOOL SHORTAGE IN U. S. HEAD OF GROWERS SAYS
Room for 15,000,000 Additional Sheep, He Declares.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
San Francisco, Jan. 21.—There is a decided shortage of wool in the United States due to increasing population, despite the fact that an over-production of lambs is sometimes apparent, President Hagenbarth of the National Wool Growers Association said today in his annual address at the opening session of the sixteenth annual convention of the association.

"There is room for an expansion of 14,000,000 or 15,000,000 sheep on our ranges and there is ample consumptive demand for an increase of over 15,000,000 pounds of wool suitable for clothing purposes," Mr. Hagenbarth said.

WILL ATTACK JURY LIST IN LINCOLN CASE

Defense Attorneys are Laying Ground Work to Appeal Case

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Geneva, Ill., Jan. 21.—As the fourth venire of 100 men was called today in an endeavor to get a jury to try Warren Lincoln for murder it was learned that his counsel was already laying the groundwork for an appeal to the Supreme Court which they believe will set aside any verdict against the lawyer-floist growing out of his confession that he shot his wife and her brother and put their decapitated heads in a block of cement.

Normal objection is to be filed by Lincoln's counsel to every juror prospect summoned on the grounds that their names are taken from the jury list, illegal because it was not prepared more than 20 days before the present term of court opened. When Lincoln was arraigned in December his counsel had the then existing jury list thrown out on the grounds that it did not contain the names of one-tenth of the voters of the county and had not been revised in many years, the names of dead men appearing on it.

At the outset of the present hearing Judge William J. Fulton, to whom the case came on change of venue from Judge John K. Newhall, overruled a contention that the present jury list is not good.

The jury question is the one that is giving most concern to judge and counsel for prosecution and defense. Out of 250 jury prospects examined, only five of them have been accepted and only one of these was found in the last 175. A new venire of 100 was called today.

Harding's Brother-in-Law Resigns His Place

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Jan. 21.—H. H. Votaw, superintendent of prisons and brother-in-law of the late President Harding, has resigned from the government service.

Mr. Votaw was appointed by Attorney General Daugherty in April, 1921. At present he is in a local sanitarium where he underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Department of justice officials declined today to discuss the resignation.

With the withdrawal of Mr. Votaw from official life, and the indicated retirement soon of Prohibition Commissioner Hynes, the circle of the intimate friends of President Harding brought to Washington by him at the beginning of his administration will virtually have disappeared.

Before he became superintendent of prisons, Mr. Votaw was a minister of the gospel.

Mr. Votaw advised the attorney general he desired to retire March 4, because of his health.

GIRL, SHOT BY LOVER IN DEATH PACT, MAY DIE

Peoria Youth Confesses Shooting Sweetheart and Then Himself.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Peoria, Ill., Jan. 21.—The recovery of Mary Ellen Miller, 20, daughter of a prominent Tazewell county farmer, and Fred Lichtenberger, 28, her sweetheart, remains doubtful, according to physicians at the Pekin hospital, where they were taken following the finding of the couple in an automobile Tuesday morning suffering from gunshot wounds, inflicted by Lichtenberger. Miss Ellen Miller was still unconscious, while Lichtenberger's condition was described as precarious.

Partially conscious, yet too weak to speak, at times last night, the girl nodded her head when asked if she recognized her parents. Dr. C. F. Grimmer, attending physician, said one bullet had penetrated her skull and possibly the brain. He said this bullet could not be removed. The other bullet, which was causing hemorrhage, was lodged behind the left eye and was removed last night. According to Lichtenberger's doctors, he has a chance for recovery, although in his confession he said that he did not want to get well. One bullet is lodged at the base of the brain and the other one, which entered his left breast, was removed.

Ended Wife Search.
In Lichtenberger's signed confession, which was made in the presence of the sheriff of Tazewell county and State's Attorney Dunkelberg, he said that his relations with the girl had been intimate. Her condition was such that further examination was not attempted.

Findings of the couple yesterday ended a country-wide search for Miss Ellen Miller who disappeared from church at Pekin last Sunday night. Thinking she may have eloped with Lichtenberger, who was formerly employed as a farm hand at the Ellen Miller farm, marriage license records of nearby cities were scanned in an attempt to trace the missing girl. The efforts were fruitless, however, and her disappearance remained a mystery until yesterday morning when the tragedy was discovered.

Wanted to Marry Her.
Lichtenberger, in his confession, said he pleaded with the girl to run away with him and get married, but she refused, as her family opposed the match, and she insisted on killing herself. He then shot her and himself after they had spent Sunday night in their automobile near a schoolhouse and Monday night in a field near the girl's parents' farm, he said.

The confession of Lichtenberger, who is 28 years old, was made in the presence of Sheriff Neuhaus, Coroner Allen, and State's Attorney Dunkelberg of Tazewell county. It was taken down in writing and signed by the younger farmer.

In his story Lichtenberger said he met Miss Ellen Miller at 7:35 o'clock Sunday night at the time she disappeared from her friends, with whom he had church in Pekin for the evening service.

Drove to School House
From the church they drove down South 5th street in Pekin to a schoolhouse in South Pekin, three miles below Pekin, where they stayed all night. Monday morning they drove into South Pekin and got something to eat and then drove back on the road to a point near the Muehlefeld farm, where they stayed all day Tuesday. At 6 o'clock Monday evening according to Lichtenberger's confession, they drove again to South Pekin and got some coffee.

From South Pekin they drove southeast toward the home of William E. Emmiller, father of the girl, and turned into a field near the farm home. Lichtenberger said he intended to keep the engine of his automobile running to keep them warm, but they ran out of gas.

Wouldn't Go Home
"I wanted to take her home Sunday night, but she wouldn't let me," Lichtenberger says in his confession. "She wanted me to shoot her and then go away," he continued, saying she told him she was to become a mother and feared the wrath of her parents.

That the shooting had been planned last Saturday was revealed by Lichtenberger, when he said he got the revolver from his uncle on that day.

"She wanted me to get chloroform so she could kill herself," Lichtenberger said. "When I couldn't get the chloroform I got the gun instead."

Coming up to the point of the actual shooting, Lichtenberger described the fright of the girl when she saw her father coming across the field to where their car was parked at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning.

SENATE WRITES FINAL WORD IN OIL INQUIRIES

Walsh's Report Adopted By Vote of 40 to 30 Tuesday.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Jan. 21.—The Senate has written the final word in the checked and memorabilia history of its naval oil lease inquiry by approving the majority report of its investigating committee criticizing the leases and certain official acts connected with them.

By a vote of 40 to 30 the Senate yesterday approved the report submitted in the closing days of the last session by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, prosecutor for the committee after rejecting a minority report presented by Senator Spencer of Missouri, on behalf of himself and four other republican members. The vote on the minority report was 42 to 28.

Six republicans and one farmer-laborer, Shipstead of Minnesota joined with democrats in voting for the majority report. All of the thirty opposing votes were republican.

Only republicans supported the minority report defending the principle of the oil reserve leasing and holding Edwin Denby as secretary of the navy and his assistants blameless.

"MA" FAVORS TAX ON CIGARETTES TO GET SCHOOL FUNDS

New Governor of Texas Thinks Smokers Most Liberal of Men.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 21.—(By The Associated Press)—Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson delivered her message to the 39th legislature of Texas today, pleading for economy, adoption of principles in the democratic platform and prophesied a more liberal policy regarding pardons of state prisoners on the part of her administration.

"In my opinion," she said, "appropriations should be reduced to at least $30,000,000."

Mrs. Ferguson urged adoption of a law which would give prisoners right to apply for a conditional parole after 15 continuous years of good behavior.

Declaring she would "look with disfavor upon the establishing of any additional school tax during my administration" the Governor recommended a tax on factory made cigarettes as a means of raising sufficient revenue to finance additional building among state educational institutions.

Mrs. Ferguson said that $4,000,000 could be raised in this way.

"If smokers are not interested in the great cause of education," she said, "all they would have to do to relieve themselves of the tax would be to cut out smoking until such time as their desire for smoking would overcome their opposition to education, but I dare say this will never occur because the man who smokes is generally the most liberal man in the community."

TRIAL OF GILBERT DURIN GOT UNDER WAY THIS MORNING AS JURY WAS SECURED LAST EVE

Long Effort to Secure Jury Terminated at Afternoon Session

The trial of young Gilbert Durin, 23-year-old Steward boy, on a manslaughter charge for the killing of his father, Dr. James M. Durin, wealthy resident of Steward, in this county, and Chicago, went into full swing this morning and will occupy the circuit court, with Judge William Emerson presiding, the next few days.

The feature of the morning session, after the opening statements by State's Attorney Mark C. Keller, who is in charge of the prosecution, and Attorney John Erwin, representing the defendant, was the testimony of pretty Miss Aileen Durin, demure younger sister of Gilbert, a high school student in Rockford, who took the stand at the call of the state but whose testimony will probably be as much aid to the defense as to the prosecution, because she said that both her father and her brother acted as though they had lost their minds on that tragic evening of July 6, last summer, when there was a quarrel at the dinner table in their home in Steward, culminating in the shooting and death of the aged physician.

Explained Situation.
Miss Aileen, on direct examination, explained the location of the various rooms of the house and detailed the scene at the table at the evening meal that night after Gilbert had arrived home from work in the pea fields near Rochelle. She said her father came to the table after suffering all day with a violent headache, to which he was subject. Gilbert remarked, during the course of the meal, that he had heard that the men who worked in the fields where he was employed planned to have a celebration and picnic, with some moonshine, after the harvest was completed. The father then spoke to Gilbert, telling him not to come around home with any of that moonshine. He then demanded of the son, "Do you understand?" Aileen said she did not know whether her brother answered or not, but that after repeating the question, the father stood up, and leaning across the table past a younger brother who sat between the father and Gilbert, the physician struck the boy a blow on his forehead, inflicting a cut in the eye. She said the boy's head jerked back under the impact and then came forward, and then Gilbert got up, without a word, and went out of the room.

Defended Her Brother.
Under cross-examination the girl said that her brother had appeared to be in friendly, good spirits when he came to the table and had spoken of the picnic in a friendly tone, but he had not said that he intended going to the picnic nor that he intended to drink any of the moonshine. She said that after he was struck by her father, who used his fist, the boy's face became very red. Her father, she said, began to lose control of himself as Gilbert left the table, and his reaching back of him for a stick that was usually kept in the corner to raise the dining room window with. Her mother, she said, said to her father, "Of course he understands" and when the father rose, she said her mother went to him and said, "You must not forget that you are a father."

Had Gun in Hands.
The girl related that the next time she saw Gilbert he was coming past the dining room window with a gun in his hands, and that someone, she was not sure who, told her to get out of the way. Her father went from the dining room into the kitchen, following the direction the boy had taken. She did not remember hearing the shot fired but when she next saw her father he was stretched on the floor with a wound in his left breast, caused by the discharge of the gun. She said that after being struck, Gilbert looked frightened and appeared to be very much afraid of his father and that when she next looked at him he looked like an insane person. Her mother's attempts to quiet the father apparently had no effect, she told the jury, and he did not seem to know what he was doing. All of the events happened in quick succession, she testified.

Five Jury Last Evening.
At 5 o'clock last evening, State's Attorney Mark C. Keller and Atty. John Erwin accepted the last four which completed the jury of twelve. It had been a long drag, a day and a half of examining men who mostly had surprisingly fixed opinions about the case, or who, if they had no opinions, had something else the matter with them, real or fancied, that necessitated their dismissal.

Court then adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

Getting a Jury
Getting juries is hard work. The innocent bystander would think it a hopeless job, after watching scores of apparently good men and true, turned down by one side or the other.

If you happen to know one of the attorneys in the case it seems to be fatal to your chances to stay in the box. And when the two attorneys are prominent in their profession and in politics and know every voter in the county, it makes it bad.

If you get by that, they accuse you

Opening Statements
The trial proper opened at 10 this morning by opening statements on the part of the prosecution and the defense. "The States' Attorney, Mr. Keller, after describing the home in Steward and the positions of the various members of the family at the dinner table that evening, told the jury that the state would prove that the boy announced that his comrades at the pea fields were planning on a big celebration with plenty of moonshine and that when the father admonished him not to bring any of the moonshine home, he did not answer, and failed to reply when the father asked "Do you understand?" State's Attorney Keller said that the father then, in a rash moment, reached over and struck the boy. Gilbert then went out of the dining room, through the kitchen, and out into the woodshed, and secured a loaded gun, came back, peering into the windows and coming around to the kitchen door, where he met his father and shot him down.

100,000 IDLE IN CHICAGO, REPORT TO STATE SHOWS

Little Improvement in Employment Throughout the State.

By Associated Press Licensed Wire.
Chicago, Jan. 21.—Employment conditions in Illinois at the close of the year, while showing increased factory employment, in some cities ranging from five percent to less than one percent, in general remained about the same as during the month of November, according to the monthly industrial analysis compiled by R. D. Cahn, chief statistician, general advisory board of the state department of labor.

The heavy sleet storm during the month afforded temporary relief in some cities, but over the state as a whole, this was more than counteracted by the decrease in out door employment occasioned by the approach of winter.

"Chicago is experiencing the worst winters since 1921," the report states. "About 100,000 people have been unemployed in this city and the social agencies during the cold snap reported receiving the largest number of requests for help of any time in years. The condition is due chiefly to the fact that Chicago industries have been depressed. The situation is now more favorable."

"Employment conditions in Aurora continue to improve, there being 3.3 per cent more persons at work in December than in November. Curtailment of work in outside industries, however, made the general employment situation worse."

"In Bloomington, the situation was complicated in December by lay-offs of 3.5 percent of the working forces, evidencing the end of the season in some of the food industries. The free employment office showed 156 registrants per 100 jobs."

Little Demand for Labor.
"Very little demand for labor was reported by the free employment office of Danville for December. Of 429 registrants for work, only 81 were placed due to lack of orders for labor. This figure, however, is higher than that of a year ago. There was no increase in factory employment."

"Although 23 of the principal factories in Decatur reported little change in the volume of employment, they agreed that work had been steadier. Although all plants were running they were unable to furnish employment for outside labor."

"An increase of five per cent in the factory employment was reported from twenty-five of the principal factories of East St. Louis. The gain was in the number of the male workers. The number of applicants for jobs increased."

"Although there was an increase in the volume of employment at the steel works of Joliet, the total volume of employment did not change. Except to local employers adding to their forces, their still existed a large number of idle men in the city, recruited chiefly from the building trades, corn huskers, and other outside workers in lines always slack at this time of the year."

"The practice of taking inventory held down the gain in factory employment in Peoria to only 7-10 of one per cent over the November total. The ice harvest strengthened the labor market somewhat, but the cold weather in general resulted in an increase in the ratio of the unemployed to jobs."

Rockford Improved.
"Quincy employers reported a decrease of 1 per cent in employment for December, and in addition the cold weather put a crimp in outdoor work. It was estimated that close to 3,000 persons were unemployed."

"Employment in Rockford increased 1.6 per cent. There was an active demand for molders, pattern makers, dye makers, and working hands. Outside labor slowed down, but there was no great unemployment in the skilled building trades.

"Conditions continued to improve in Rock Island and in Moline an increase of 2.3 per cent over November was recorded. Free employment statistics showed a slight increase in the ratio of unemployed to vacant jobs, over November."

"Ten local employers of factory labor in Springfield reported a gain of 3.5 per cent in employment. An improvement in the ratio of unemployed to unfilled jobs was reported by the free employment office."

"MA" FERGUSON INAUGURATED AS TEXAS GOVERNOR

Elaborate Ceremonies Marked Her Induction to Office.

BULLETIN.
Austin, Tex., Jan. 20.—The crowd pressing against the doors of the House of Representatives to witness Mrs. Miriam Ferguson inaugurated as governor of Texas, was so great that the Governor's party could not enter and the inaugural was delayed. Officials in charge at noon were discussing the possibility of holding the ceremonies in the stadium of the University of Texas. No one could get in or out of the hall.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 20.—(By the Associated Press)—Formal inauguration of Mrs. Miriam Ferguson as Texas first woman governor, was set for noon today in the spacious hall of the House of Representatives where ten years ago her husband, James E. Ferguson, was sworn in to the same office, and where, nearly three years later, articles of impeachment were voted against him, resulting in his removal from office.

In taking the oath as the twenty-eighth chief executive of this vast commonwealth of five million population, Mrs. Ferguson attains a political distinction held by but one other of her sex in the United States.

Mrs. Nellie T. Ross of Wyoming who took office early this month. Like Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Ross occupies the office formerly held by her husband.

Ceremonies as elaborate as the event is unique surround every feat of the inaugural. No previous governor ever witnessed such an elaborate inaugural program. The entire city is bedecked with Texas and American flags.

Vindicates Husband
To Mrs. Ferguson, her inauguration represents the final stepping stone of her long endeavor to clear her family name from the stigma of her husband's impeachment. She for one never believed the charges of misappropriation of public funds which were the basis for the impeachment and during his trial and the days of despair which followed his removal from office, she steadfastly stood by him and encouraged him in his efforts at a political comeback. His impeachment barred him from ever holding office in the state and his name, the courts held, could not legally go on the ballots.

He solved the dilemma by having his wife make the race and she did a good job of it. Her husband took an active part in her campaign and made many speeches in her behalf.

And none of the vast throng to witness his wife's induction into office was more interested or satisfied than he.

TEN DEAD OR MISSING NOW IN SOUTHLAND
Floods in Georgia Exacted Heavy Toll, Reports Show.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 20.—(By The Associated Press)—With the list of dead and missing standing at ten, railroad and motor traffic demoralized, and a heavy property loss sustained, the crest of the flood which had been acute in several southern states since Saturday night early today was believed passing.

In southern Georgia, where the menace and damage probably was greatest, many streams were said to be receding with fair weather promised for today. Predicted continued rains along the tributaries in north Georgia, however, were expected to cause the recession to be gradual.

No estimate of property damage was available early today, though the amount was expected to be large. Three of the dead were trainmen who died in wrecks attributed to the flood in Georgia and Alabama Sunday. Two were white men who disappeared from Albany, Ga., Saturday night, four were negroes reported drowned near Hammond, La., Sunday and one a negro drowned at Columbus, Ga., yesterday.

Menus for a Family

Tested by SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cereal, thin cream, codfish and potato puff, corn bread, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Bean soufflé, brown bread and butter sandwiches, apple and celery salad, caramel junket, plain cake, milk, tea.

Dinner—Beef a la mode, mashed potatoes, buttered parsnips, beet salad, peach snow, cake, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

A soft-boiled egg or lamb chop should be served to children under school age in place of the bean soufflé for luncheon.

The other dishes mentioned in the day's menu can be served at a mother's discretion.

Bean Soufflé.

One-half cup dried beans, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup milk, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon bacon fat, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon paprika, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt.

Pick over and wash beans and let stand over night in cold water. Par-boil beans in water to which one-half teaspoon of soda has been added. Drain and rinse in cold water.

Cover with boiling water and cook until tender. Rub through a vegetable ricer or colander. There should be three-fourths or one cup of sifted beans. Melt bacon fat, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Cook until thick and smooth. Add beans, salt and paprika and yolks of eggs beaten until thick. Mix thoroughly and fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. When firm to the touch the soufflé is done. Serve at once in the dish in which it was baked.

Plain Cake.

One cup sugar, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon cream of tartar, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon soda, $\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour, 3 tablespoons melted butter, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla, 1 egg, milk.

Mix and sift flour, sugar, cream of tartar, soda and salt. Break egg into measuring cup and fill cup with milk. Add to dry ingredients and beat until smooth. Add melted butter and vanilla and beat well. Turn into a buttered and floured loaf cake pan and bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven.

Beet Salad.

One and one-half cups diced boiled beets, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup diced celery, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup broken English walnut meats, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon powdered sugar, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon mustard, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 6 tablespoons oil.

Combine beets, celery and nuts. Put salt, sugar, pepper and mustard in a small bowl and mix thoroughly. Add lemon juice, beating with a silver fork. Add oil slowly, beating well. Pour over salad mixture and serve on a bed of lettuce. If the bowl, lemon juice and oil are very cold the dressing will be of creamy consistency. Chill the salad mixture well and the whole will be more attractive than a salad separated from its dressing.

Fifth of Women in U. S. Are Employed

Chicago.—More than 8,500,000 women or 21.1 percent of the female population are gainfully employed in the United States, according to Mary L. Downes, High Chief Ranger of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters in an address here.

"Of this number 2,186,924 or about one in four work as domestics or in personal service, statistics of the U. S. Women's Bureau show," said Miss Downes, whose society is active in benefiting women workers. "Agriculture, forestry and animal industries employ 1,084,128 women. Women factory workers number 1,830,341."

"Women employed as stenographers and in clerical work number 1,426,116. An additional 1,016,498 are engaged in teaching and professional work. Trades and transportation work claim 880,846."

"While there has been an increase of more than 400,000 in the number of women employed in America in the last ten years, the actual percentage of women employed in relation to the population has shown a decrease."

"Most women, it has been found, work from necessity. Many of them are the chief breadwinners of their families. The majority of women workers unless they are engaged in teaching or professional fields find it impossible to lay any reserve for future comfort or the protection of their dependents."

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

Add Baking Soda.

If baking soda is added to the water in which beans are soaked they will be soft in about half the usual time.

Watering Ferns.

For watering ferns use water with the chill just taken off, especially in winter when the house is artificially heated.

Removes Stains.

A paste of cornmeal and vinegar will remove fruit stains from the hands.

Protects Surface.

Linoleum should always be oiled or varnished to protect the surface from wear and to keep the colors fresh.

Mashed Potatoes.

Mashed potatoes can be prepared in a cake mixer in much less time than it takes to prepare them by hand.

Brightens Metals.

To keep metals bright after polishing rub with flannel moistened with paraffin oil.

Freshen Vegetables.

To freshen wilted vegetables add the juice of a lemon to a pan of water and let them stand in that for an hour or more.

During 1924 there were 911 cases of smallpox and 110 deaths from that disease reported in the city of Minneapolis. Among school children there were 81 cases and 2 deaths. Neither of the children who died were ever vaccinated.

Delayed Conference of House Committees Today

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Late arrival of leaders of the Illinois House of Representatives delayed, until afternoon today, a conference called by Speaker Scholes. Speaker Scholes said that after the session today he probably would be able to announce several chairmanships of committees.

When Coughs Hang On

Mrs. Mann of Anytown learned why a slight hacking cough hung on with one of her youngsters.

It was just a habit. The child had had a cough as a result of a cold. But all effects of the cold seemingly had been relieved. Still there was that slight cough. It just would not leave.

A physician was called. He explained to Mrs. Mann that children often developed the coughing habit, after a siege of real coughing from a cold.

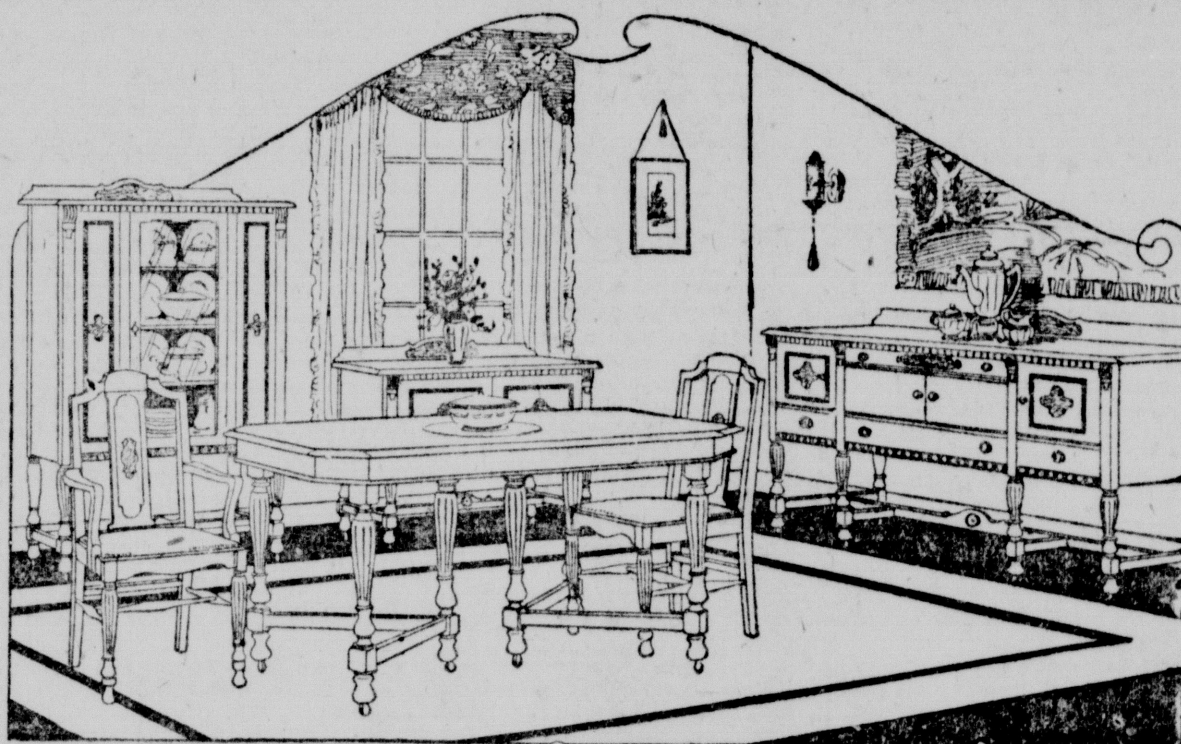

The doctor also explained to Mrs. Mann that often coughing was caused by the pendulous soft part of the mouth becoming relaxed and touching the back part of the tongue.

This produced a tickling sensation, which required a cough to relieve it, the doctor said.

"When this condition is met," the doctor said, "take a little dry tannic acid; put it in a quill, and blow it toward the back of the mouth. This will contract the uvula, causing it to pull away from the back part of the tongue."

WOULD TAX BILLBOARDS.

C. D. Buck, chief engineer of the Delaware state highway department, in his report for the year 1924, recommends a good thing. He asks that the legislature enact a law that will enable the department to control the erection of billboards along the public roads, and also to collect a tax of 10 cents per square foot on every board within 200 feet of a public road.

In his comment in support of the recommendation Mr. Buck points out that it is the public road that makes the board valuable and not the private property on which it is erected, therefore, if there is to be any revenue at least part of it belongs to the public, which owns the roads. He said also that if the department were given regulatory power it could prevent the erection of boards at points where they obstruct intersecting roads.
He might well have recommended also that signs on such boards gotten up in shape to lead the motorist to believe they will direct him to where he wants to go be barred entirely. Along some highways, notably the Old National Trails, notices are posted that all billboards and advertising signs are barred. Unfortunately there is lax enforcement of this notice.

BUSINESS PSYCHOLOGY.

President Wilson said that the depression during the early months of his administration was "purely psychological." His fellow democrats today think the present boom in values and in business is also "purely psychological." Undoubtedly the state of mind of the people has much to do with business conditions. When the Wilson policies were being put into effect, particularly the democratic tariff, the whole country was alarmed, and everybody began to prepare for bad business conditions. The lack of confidence accelerated the depression. With the overwhelming victory of Coolidge at the polls in November, the whole country has confidence that all will be well for four years more, and this faith leads men to buy goods and securities and to increase their industrial activity. That naturally increases market values and accelerates the business boom. Psychology is an important factor in human affairs, and the man or the political party that fails to take psychology into account shows unfitness for leadership.

JAP HOUSE OF PEERS INSECURE.

In Japan the house of peers is not unlikely to undergo a "trimming," as the house of lords did in England several years ago. One of the popular political parties over there is demanding that Premier Kato shall sponsor a bill to make peerages elective, except that members of the imperial family shall be allowed to continue to hold seats by inherited right. At present not only members of the royal family but noblemen holding the rank of prince, count or marquis also hold seats by right of rank. There are so many of these that but a small number of members now are elective. Thus far Preimer Kato and the political party of which he is the head has not taken a decisive stand. If he fails to bring in a reform bill, the coalition of parties standing behind him will doubtless be broken up.

Then it would be impossible for him to carry on his government, and new elections would have to be called.

Demand all over the world is coming to be more and more that the popular will shall rule. If this demand is recognized in Japan it will not have much farther to go.

THE CROSS-WORD CROOK.

Evidently there are unsuspected perils lurking in the apparently innocent cross-word puzzle. It may become an instrument of crime

Consider the sad experience of John San-kowski and Edward Segar of Lynn, Mass.
Those ardent cross-word fans were seated in a restaurant, working out a puzzle, when a stranger came up and won their confidence by showing that he knew about puzzles than they did. Eventually he invited them to his room to continue working out their solutions.

Later, the two boys reported that the obliging stranger had stolen their overcoats, fountain pens, gold watches and money.
Beware the cross-word confidence man!

The house at Washington has listened to protests against the cutting of the appropriation for expenses of citizens' military training camps. By an amendment to the war department appropriation bill $807,471 was added to the appropriation for this purpose. Should the senate concur this will bring the appropriation back to the original budget sum. This training is a need of peace as well as of war. The senate should concur.

"Europe," remarks the New York World,
"is at another cross-road." And that continent is going to be pretty well occupied this year in solving its cross-road puzzle.

And the first thing you know Uncle Charley was writing a letter to his nephew in the country.

"Do you know of any more wishes that I can grant?" asked the Fairy Queen as she and the Twins flew along on Two Spot, the big blue velvet butterfly.
They were having a sort of wish-giving party, you know.
Nick said, "There's a little boy who lives near us in the country. I often hear him say that he wishes he could live in the city. He says he is sick of the country."
"He does, does he?" exclaimed the Fairy Queen in surprise. "That's a funny wish. Will you take me to his house?"
"Sure," said Nick. "His name is Chuck Anderson and he lives two houses beyond the Cross Roads."
Two Spot lit in a pine tree where they could see but couldn't be seen.
"Wouldn't people have been surprised to see a big butterfly in the middle of winter, with three passengers on his back!"
No—it was better not to be seen at all.
Chuck Anderson was out shoveling snow. He was making a path to the wood-pile.
"When you're through shoveling and have enough wood chopped for tomorrow," called his mother, "you may go sled-riding until supper time."
"Aw, shucks!" growled Chuck. "I wish I lived in the city. City fellows don't have to shovel paths and chopwood. I wish I lived at Uncle Charley's."
"I know where his Uncle Charley lives," said Nick. "I was there once.
It is a fine house near a park."
"Then come," said the Fairy Queen. "We'll go there at once. I am going to speak to Uncle Charley."
"Oh, but he's a sort of funny man," said Nick. "He never would believe in fairies."

The Fairy Queen laughed. "I won't let him see me," she said. "I'll just whisper in his ear."
Two Spot flew off to the city where Uncle Charley lived.
"I can't tell you where the butterfly landed or how they got into the house or where the Fairy Queen perched as she whispered into Uncle Charley's ear. But it all happened anyway. And the first thing you know Uncle Charley was writing a letter to his nephew in the country."
The letter said: "Dear Chuck: I've been thinking a lot about you today and would like to see you. I am going to speak to your father about you coming to live with me in the city. You can go to a good school and study music and all sorts of things. Yours lovingly, Uncle Charley."
That letter and another letter to Chuck's father went by the same mail.
And the next day Chuck arrived, trunk and all, at the big house in the city.
The Fairy Queen and the Twins were there to see him, although neither Chuck nor his uncle saw them.
"I know I'm going to like being a city boy," said Chuck. "I got tired of the country and shoveling snow and chopping wood and doing chores.
It was funny! I was just wishing I could come and stay with you. Then I got your letter. It was almost as though a fairy must have told you!"
"We'll come back later and see how things are going," said the Fairy Queen to the Twins.

By Chester H. Rowell

"Get out the vote" campaigns and compulsory voting laws all begin at the wrong end. What is the use of requiring people to vote until you have first made it possible for them to vote intelligently?

And this is not a mere matter of having intelligent voters. American business men are mostly intelligent;
but how many of them vote intelligently on state measures? Egyptian fellahs are mostly ignorant, but they vote intelligently, to select which of their neighbors they are willing to trust to serve as elector, to choose a smaller body which names the national assembly.

It is all a matter of what you ask the people to do. Any ballot which the directors of the chamber of commerce and the faculty of political science of the university cannot vote intelligently, it too much for the rest of us. And that is the sort of ballot most of our states and counties impose on their citizens.

The federal ballot is simple enough.
All we elect, of the national government, is the president and congress.
It will be time enough to demand compulsory voting when we make our state and local ballots as simple

RESPONSIBILITY IS BEST REMEDY
Why should belated citations for bravery twenty-seven years old be shocking enough to be worth a headline? That is the way Uncle Sam pays his money debts, too.

A routine claim will go through,
by the routine; but anything requiring judgment may wait generations.
Beyond a certain point, only congress can decide, and congress never finishes.

We are only now paying French spoilage claims a hundred years old, and there are meritorious private claims which have been bandaged from congress to congress for fifty years, until the claimants and their descendants were all dead.
It is not lack of good will, but simply the incapacity of the machine to operate.

Congress does not dare delegate enough power to executive departments which are irresponsible and inaccessible to it, and the mass of detail is too much for congress itself.

The remedy, of course, for this as well as for many much larger things, is responsibility. Whenever congress

VITAMINE X—
BEWARE QUACKS

Every day finds out something new, in the deep mystery of life. The latest is another vitamin—"vitamine X." Rats fed on a "pure food" diet plus green leaves for the growth vitamine, are perfectly normal. Substitute orange juice, which also contains the same growth vitamin, and they thrive equally well—but have no young. Add one drop of a concentrated oil extract from wheat germs, and abundant families follow. All of which so far, has been tried only on rats.

But if these new students of the processes of life find out as much as the students of other sciences have already done with steam and electricity—what next? That we shall, by taking pills, add cubits to our stature, is already certain.
One variety of idiots—"cretins"— can be transformed into intelligent men by thyroid extract. Laziness and cowardice are known to be chemical products, which can be neutralized by other chemicals.

How long shall we wait for an injection to cure stupidity and dishonesty? After that may come something to transform us all into saints and geniuses. Which may or may not make the world more interesting to live in.

Meantime, wait for real scientists to find out these things. And beware of the quacks who will pretend to have them for sale.

NORRIST STUDY IS STUDY OF MAN

Don't worry if the "non-fiction" books in the library need devices and premiums to get them out, and if the younger generation flock to the movies and have to be dragged to instructive lectures and quaint offerings into school. "The noblest study of mankind is man," and these are precisely the text books of that study.

Love, hate and jealousy, struggle,
success and disappointment, birth,
marriage and death, conflict and helplessness—these are the stuff of life. Every poet, every novelist, every dramatist, knows this, and deals with these things as his material. Every impulse reaches out, to fly on the wings of imagination more freely than plodding facts permit.

The compulsory schools will teach arithmetic and calculus, spelling and Greek, geography and geology enough, but the voluntary schools are teaching—or misteaching—life.

GUN EXPLODES,
ROCHELLE MAN
BADLY INJURED

Robert Watson May
Be Crippled for Life, Result.

Rochelle—Robert Watson, 24, Rochelle, is a patient at Lincoln hospital as the result of injuries sustained late Sunday afternoon when a shell was exploded in a shotgun which the youth was cleaning after a hunting trip.

The charge of shot entered Watson's hip and leg inflicting a severe wound and he suffered considerably from loss of blood while being taken to the hospital.

On his arrival at the operating room he was given emergency

RADIO AND REAL ESTATE

The roles of radio in modern life are constantly increasing. Real estate is one of the newest fields in which its influence is being felt. Buyers and builders of homes are taking it into account in planning or selecting dwellings, and it is beginning to be realized that in many instances radio reception has a definite relation to realty values.

In New York City, for instance, many apartment house owners cooperate with their tenants in installing sets, realizing that radio is no longer the toy of an occasional enthusiast, but is rapidly becoming an indispensable part of the equipment of every home. When landlords began to realize that radio had come to stay and was not merely a passing fad, many of them facilitated the erection of outdoor aerials for their tenants on the roofs of buildings. But the increasing popularity of indoor aerials, or loops, due to their convenience, greater efficiency, and lessening of interference, is now marking the beginning of the end of the outside antenna. One well known set of the reflex type which operates on a loop will bring in stations within a thousand mile radius loud and clear on a loud speaker.

Knowing that thousands of fans prefer to build their own sets from standard parts instead of buying ready made receivers, an apartment house superintendent of the writer's acquaintance has fitted up a room in the basement where tenants may make and remake sets according to their own ideas, and experiment with new hook-ups to their hearts' content. Needless to say, this workshop-laboratory is one of the most popular places in the house evenings and week ends. And radio is such a democratic art that often the janitor and his most aristocratic tenant spend an evening together helping each other build set swapping information about DX, and arguing the relative merits of various hook-ups. Some apartment house dwellers who used to think that a janitor was only someone to swear at when the heat was low now listen respectfully to his expert advice about transformers, low losses, and amplification without distortion.

In both city and country it is not unusual these days to see newspaper advertisements of houses or apartments in which good location and favorable conditions for broadcast reception are noted in detail as evidence of the desirability and value of the property. For example: "For sale—two family house in suburbs; exceptional location for radio reception; house on high ground, open space, no interference. Owner gets dozen distance stations nightly on radio."

Just this week the writer met a commuter who established a home in New Jersey 25 miles out of New York a year or two ago, and selected it chiefly because of its fine location on a hill which gave him an unobstructed view of the country for 20 miles around. Now he prizes it even more for its splendid adaptability to broadcast reception. He is an enthusiastic amateur, and his house is a popular place for fans of the neighborhood to gather to compare notes about their experiments and to listen to the various sets which the commuter has built. The other day one of his rich neighbors offered him considerable more than he had paid for his house because of its fine radio location.

"I sell this place," he replied. "Not if I bought it because I could see 20 miles around me. Now along comes radio and I can hear 2,000 miles around me. My place is not for sale. Come over tonight and listen to Denver on the new Acme reflex set I've just finished."

A young man of the writer's acquaintance who lives on Long Island moved from his previous home because of the interference to radio reception from elevated railroads, power lines, etc. He found the second situation about as bad as the first and is now planning to move to still another house in the spring in the hope of finally finding a good location for reception.

It is not strange that real estate men are awakening to the possibilities of radio as a factor in their own business. Never again can anything which does so much to make home life happy and to bring contentment into the cottage and the mansion be left out of the calculations of real estate dealers and home builders. Radio may yet have a bigger role in reality than even the most progressive operators and developers have foreseen.

except a softening of both the physical and moral fibres.

I think that tomorrow Mrs. Prescott would be glad to begin her life in a small house, as her mother did with her husband, taking the full care of it herself and raising her children.

She seems to almost hate the luxury with which she is surrounded and the other night I heard her say she really wished that she was like a friend of hers, a Mrs. Atherton, a woman who had to work for her living.

Someone said: "But Mrs. Atherton has no one to love her, no one to understand and sympathize with her."

Mrs. Prescott did not answer, but into her eyes there came a more desolate look. If possible, than usual.

Although "Sister Ruth" has said very little to me about my brother, yet I have gathered that she was very unhappy with him, and it has thrown a gloom over her entire life.

Mr. Burke, the man she married, adores her, but always there seems to be lurking in Ruth's heart a feeling that she might have made my brother happier.

I have tried to make her understand that although my brother was very good to me I knew that he was very selfish, that he never gave even me any part of himself, although he sent me a great deal of money (which I am sure now he did not take from his own pleasures or pursue it from his own checks on a commercial bank but to draw from one's bank of good nature and patience and sympathy and love is always be able to do this if one would make those about them happy.

I have told you a great deal about these people with whom I am with because I think perhaps they are a typical American family. As such, their lives must be as interesting to you as to me.

I will write you, my dear, from time to time and tell you how these people live out their lives. I certainly do hope that some time I shall see that sad look come from Mrs. Prescott's eyes. Perhaps it will be soon, for she expects her baby within the next month.

I don't know just how little Jack—that is what her oldest child is called—will take the entrance of another into his kingdom, for I have never seen such adoring devotion between mother and child as between these two. It is the most beautiful thing in all the family life that I have seen since I have been here. I am the solace and consolation of Mrs. Prescott.

Write me soon, dear. ZOE. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

DISCORDANT NOISE MAY BE MASTERED BY HIS INVENTION

University of Iowa Man Has Novel Scheme to Provide Quiet.

Iowa City, Ia.—By causing successive waves of sound to interfere with each other's transmission, Dr. G. W. Stewart, a professor of physics at the University of Iowa, has perfected a device which he believes in time may be used to eliminate undesirable noises and to adjust sounds "to an individual's aesthetic taste."

The establishment of quiet zones for hospitals and the requirement of mufflers for automobiles testify to the penetrating nature of sound waves. They will pass, Dr. Stewart says, through the most minute crack, and even through an apparently solid wall. With the theory that sound waves would expend themselves were they placed in conflict with one another, Dr. Stewart worked out his device, which he calls an acoustic wave filter.

The results are obtained, Dr. Stewart explains, not by placing obstructions in the path of sound, but by setting up a sort of battle between the various waves, thus creating a disordered transmission.

A brass cylinder tube one-half inch in diameter and six inches long, containing nothing but air and open at both ends, is caused to transmit all tones of piano up to a certain note and above this to transmit no audible sound. With another and slightly different tube, the tones below this note, or any other note, will be refused transmission, whereas all higher tones pass freely.

"Other equally remarkable results of a similar nature can be obtained," said Dr. Stewart in explaining his device. "The tubes, while entirely open and free from obstructions, have, at regular intervals, branching tubes and chambers. At each branching point, waves are reflected backward through the tube. The design of the branches can be made in such a manner as to produce a backward reflection and an interference of almost any group of tones."

Dr. Stewart explained that he considered the device truly a filter. It is a new basic method of manipulating sound waves and may find application in many acoustic devices in use today. "The telephone, the phonograph and even musical instruments themselves may sooner or later profit by this new device," Dr. Stewart said. "In fact, there is opened to the imagination the possibility of the elimination of undesirable noises and the enjoyment of sounds adjusted to an individual's aesthetic taste."

17,000 Tons Explosives Used in Peaceful Work
Springfield—Approximately 34,000,000 pounds of explosives were used in peaceful industry in Illinois during the first eleven months of the year just past, according to figures compiled by the department of interior, bureau of mines. Of this, more than 24,000,000 pounds was black blasting powder, an explosive used extensively in the bituminous coal mining industry.

During the month of November, Illinois used more of this explosive than any other state, the figures show. Of the 103,441 kegs or about 2,550,000 used in that month, 101,226 kegs equalling 2,530,000 pounds were employed in the coal mines of the state. Illinois used more than 3,000,000 pounds of "permissible" high explosives in 1924, while 5,997,148 pounds of high explosives "other than permissible" were used. Only 354,913 pounds of the former class were used in mines, and 2,989,905 of the latter class.

Girl Kills Man Who Betrayed Her

ANGELINA MANNINO.

By NEA Service.

Cleveland.—Fifteen-year-old Angelina Mannino valued her honor more than a human life.

So Tony Valore is dead.

And Angelina is facing a long prison term.

But the little girl, with the long raven black tresses, the dark olive complexion, the flashing black eyes and the even row of pearly teeth, only laughs.

The "unwritten law," her attorneys tell her, is certain to carry more weight with the jury than the prosecutor's demands for punishment.

Instead of weeping and making hysterical accusations, Angelina, from the time she walked into a police station and announced she had just shot Tony, only jokes with detectives and lawyers.

"Sure, I shot him," she says. "Then the detectives, trying to break down her story in the belief the shooting was done by some one older, come back with:

"Now, Angelina, you know you didn't shoot him."

To which she boastfully replies: "Oh, didn't I? Say, you ought to have been there."

Tony, 24, married and the father of three children, long had been a friend of Angelina's family. Often he and his wife came to the Mannino home.

But one day he came alone. And only Angelina and her sister, Ouida, 15, and little brother, Joe, 6, were there.

And Tony, according to the girl,

was taking advantage of her parents' absence, betrayed her.

Then and there Angelina vowed revenge.

Tony returned a few days later, but his wife was with him, Angelina waited until he came back alone.

He was standing in a doorway talking to her mother when Angelina walked into the room. He greeted her and she returned his salutation with five shots from a pistol she had concealed in her apron.

Thus did little Angelina square accounts with the man who tried to steal her honor.

The state health officer of Iowa has warned local officials in that state to be prepared to cope with epidemic smallpox at any time. The basis of the warning is a recent increased prevalence of smallpox in virulent form.

By keepin' still Cal Coolidge got nearly every vote in the country, but nobody seems to have got a hunch out of his election but H. Johnson. Mrs. Ike Lark's dad has been married just sixty years today, but from his photograph you'd think he had a mind of his own.

LAST YEAR WAS ONE OF WETTEST IN THIS STATE

Only One Year on Record
Had More Days
of Rainfall.

Springfield.—(By the Associated Press).—Only one other year on record gave Illinois more rainy days than 1924, only six had more snow and only eight were colder, according to the 1924 weather review and summary issued here today by Clarence J. Root, federal meteorologist.

Destructive floods, a backward corn season, wheat damage, and extensive peach destruction and a disastrous glaze storm, were outstanding details of the year's report, offset somewhat by a cool and pleasant July and a "remarkably fine October."

The report in part follows: "The year 1924 will be remembered for its severe and unusual storm conditions. Low temperatures obtained in January and winter wheat was frozen back. There were frequent snows in February. Wheat was injured by freezing and thawing. March was cold and cloudy, with much snow and some damaging wind storms. Practically all peaches were winter-killed—killed north of Carbondale. Only February, April, October and November were warmer than normal. May was very cold and cloudy, June was cool and pleasant.

"Destructive floods occurred in August. September was cold. Sixty-seven percent of the year's precipitation was recorded during the crop growing season. The cool, wet weather produced a backward season and corn was behind in maturing. There was frost damage in spots on Sept. 30 but after Oct. 1 there were no low temperatures until the general killing frosts of October 22 and 23, when much of the corn was safe. October was a remarkably fine month with its mild temperature, absence of rainfall and unusually clear weather. Most of the corn was harvested when the severe glaze storm occurred in December. This storm was followed by sub-zero temperatures, lowering the December record at thirty-three stations.

"In comparing the year 1924 with the climatological record of the past, it is found that there have been eight colder years.

"The snowfall totals were greatest in the northern division and least in the extreme south, the extremes being 46 inches at Sycamore and 9 inches at Cairo. The percentage of the normal amounts by divisions is as follows: North 115; central 128; south 104."

WHOOPING COUGH IN STATE CLIMBS AT RAPID SPEED

It Is Now One of Most Prevalent Diseases in Illinois.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 21.—Jumping from an average of 15 to 50 cases daily since January 1, whooping cough is now one of the most prevalent contagious diseases in the state, according to a dispatch from the state health department. Young children are affected more than any other group.

"Contrary to popular opinion," said Dr. Isaac D. Hawkins, state health director, "whooping cough is one of the most serious and fatal of the childhood infections. In 1923 it caused 515 fatalities in the state or nearly as many deaths as typhoid and scarlet fevers combined, almost as many as measles and more than half the number due to diphtheria. During the first half of 1924 it caused 211 deaths and probably more than that during the second half. These were the number of deaths attributed to whooping cough directly and nobody knows how many of the bronchopneumonia fatalities of which there were more than 2,000, originated in attacks of whooping cough.

"Highly infectious, whooping cough may attack a child who merely passes a patient on the street. Wafted upon a gust of air, the minute particles of excretion from the nose and throat of the sick may carry the germs into the air passages of the well. The disease is spread also by direct contact between the sick and well, but it is highly improbable that a third person frequently carries it except on his hands or other articles having on it moist, recent discharges from nose or mouth of the patient.

"Very young children suffer most severely from whooping cough. Out of 515 deaths from that disease in 1923—256, or 50 per cent, were among children less than one year old. Nearly 80 per cent were among children under two, while 95 per cent were among little tots of less than five summers. It is rare that a person above ten years of age succumbs to whooping cough.

"This observation plainly indicates that the advance of age brings with it a positive immunity or at least a vital resistance to whooping cough. Were it not so, disastrous epidemics would break out among adult populations who had escaped by some chance during childhood.

"More serious than on its own account, perhaps, whooping cough is frequently the forerunner of such serious complications as broncho-pneumonia, especially in winter, tuberculosis, malnutrition and gastro-intestinal disease. These disturbances are indeed credited with fatalities which would not have occurred in many instances had it not been for whooping cough.

"The best thing for whooping cough is to avoid it. Contact or close association with a patient is practically the only way the disease is spread. Sometimes it may not be recognized as whooping cough, but only as a cold. Severe cases may follow exposure to mild ones. Preventive and curative vaccines have been prepared and are on the market. Some physicians believe they are helpful in reducing severity of the disease if given immediately after exposure. The health department recommends that parents follow the advice of a physician in reference to vaccine, if the children have been no unfortunate to have been exposed to whooping cough.

FOX HUNTING NEW SPORT IN CARROLL COUNTY

Reynard Having Hard Fight for Life in Nearby County.

These are evil days for foxes and wolves of Carroll county. Twice during the winter have farmers of Lanark and vicinity waged campaigns against them, in retaliation for raids on poultry, lambs and small pigs, and in each drive several of the marauders were killed.

The hunt staged last Friday in the vicinity of Lanark resulted in the killing of five foxes and two wolves, to say nothing of the several animals that got away when darkness fell over the hunting ground. There were nearly 250 hunters in the drive, including a number from Rockford.

Another drive is set for tomorrow. The hunters will try to rid Woodland township of some of the numerous foxes that infest it, the region being ideal for the little animals, as it includes hills, bluffs, gulleys and timber along its creeks. This gives Reynard a sporting chance to escape the hunters and at the same time add zest to the hunt, as there is not sport in shooting down a fox that hasn't a chance to get away.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Fear thou not; for I am with thee; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.—Isa. 41:10.

Why, what should be the fear? I do not set my life at a pin's fee; and, for my soul, what can it do that, being a thing immortal.—Shakespeare.

FIGHT WITH SPECTACLES

Constantinople—Seven men, all wearing spectacles, engaged in a free-for-all fight in front of the treasury building. Police arrested all of them on charges of "assaulting a man wearing eye-glasses." The fight resulted from a political argument, the participants said.

HOG PRODUCTION IN CORN BELT IN BIG DECLINE IN '24

Over Eleven Million Fewer Pigs Raised, Statistics Show.

Springfield—Between eleven and twelve million less pigs were raised in the corn belt in 1924, than in 1923, according to the report of the annual pig survey, announced here by A. J. Surratt, federal agricultural statistician for Illinois. The spring crop fell 7,000,000 short and the fall crop 4,500,000.

The report was as follows: "A hog production in 1925 probably as small as in any year in the last ten and an acute shortage of hog products in 1926 are indicated in the December 1 pig survey made by the United States Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the Post Office Department, through the rural carriers.

"The survey shows a decrease of 25.2 per cent in the number of sows farrowing in the fall of 1924 in the country as a whole from the number farrowed in the fall of 1923. Because of a somewhat higher average number of pigs saved per litter the decrease in pigs is only 22.2 per cent. For the corn belt, the decrease in sows farrowed was 30.6 per cent, and in pigs saved was 23 per cent. Decreases in the other regions while large were somewhat less than in the corn belt.

"The number of sows bred or to be bred to farrow in the spring of 1925 is shown as 94.3 per cent of the number of sows that actually farrowed in the spring of 1924, for the United States, and 89.6 per cent for the corn belt. Based upon the results of previous surveys which have shown about how much the number of sows farrowed has fallen short of breeding intentions, the present survey indicates a reduction of from 15 to 25 per cent in sows that will farrow in the corn belt in the spring of 1925. For the country as a whole a somewhat similar reduction is indicated.

"The reduction of 25.4 per cent in the fall crop in the corn belt follows the reduction of over 17 per cent in the spring crop shown by the survey of last June. The total number of pigs raised in the corn belt in 1924 was probably fully 10 per cent less than in 1923. Quantitatively, this represents a reduction from 1923 of between 11,000,000 and 12,000,000 head; around 7,000,000 in the spring crop and 4,500,000 in the fall crop.

But in spite of the large reduction in numbers born, the market movement to Jan. 1, of the 1924 crop of the corn belt hogs has been almost as large as the movement to the same date of the 1923 spring crop. December marketing and slaughter in 1924 were the largest ever recorded.

"The reduction in sows bred this fall for spring farrow compared with a year ago is indicated at around 2,000,000 head in the corn belt. These will go to increase the winter market supply and to decrease the marketing next summer and fall, thus making the decreased supplies of the marketing year the more marked in the second half of the year."

What folly to suffer Colds

A cold can be checked in 24 hours. The fever and headache can be ended. Even La Grippe can be stopped in 3 days. Millions have proved that. Your druggist guarantees it. Your own neighbors will certify it.

Then why let colds linger? They mean both discomfort and danger. Millions are wrecked by results of colds. The right way, the best way, is with Hill's Cascara-Bromide-Quinine. The result of years of research. A treatment so perfect that 25 years have developed no way to improve it. It stops a cold in a day. But it does far more. It removes the poisons caused by colds. It restores vitality to the whole system. In the quickest, surest way men know it brings one back to normal.

BEAUTY AND ECONOMY IN 1925 FASHIONS

Overblouses Will Afford Women Great Variety in Costuming at Small Expense

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

NEA Service Writer

New York—Beauty and economy so rarely travel together in the fashion pageant that one grows tired of looking for the combination, but you'll find it in the 1925 fashions.

Nothing more attractive is to be found in Henri Bendel's spring collection than the separate blouses, by means of which women can have great variety of costuming at practically small expense.

"The overblouse is the modern version of the old shirtwaist," this creator of styles pointed out. "Years ago the shirtwaist came in vogue with the tailored suit and was probably the most generally unbecoming and unsatisfactory garments ever invented for women."

"It made the broad woman look broader by cutting her off at the waistline. It gave a hard and unlovely line where it joined the skirt, as well as a bulky one where the skirt came over the portion that had to be concealed."

"It allowed for no freedom of action without disturbing the general effect. But in a way it was practical and its vogue was increasing by women's outdoor activities."

Shirtwaist Retired

"A few years ago the one-piece dress was restored to favor and the shirtwaist went into retirement, to retirement, to return seasons later as the overblouse. And the overblouse had managed to eliminate all the bad features of the shirtwaist and retain its practical advantages."

"Paris is exploiting the overblouse and the tunic more than ever before, and it is reaching new heights of loveliness."

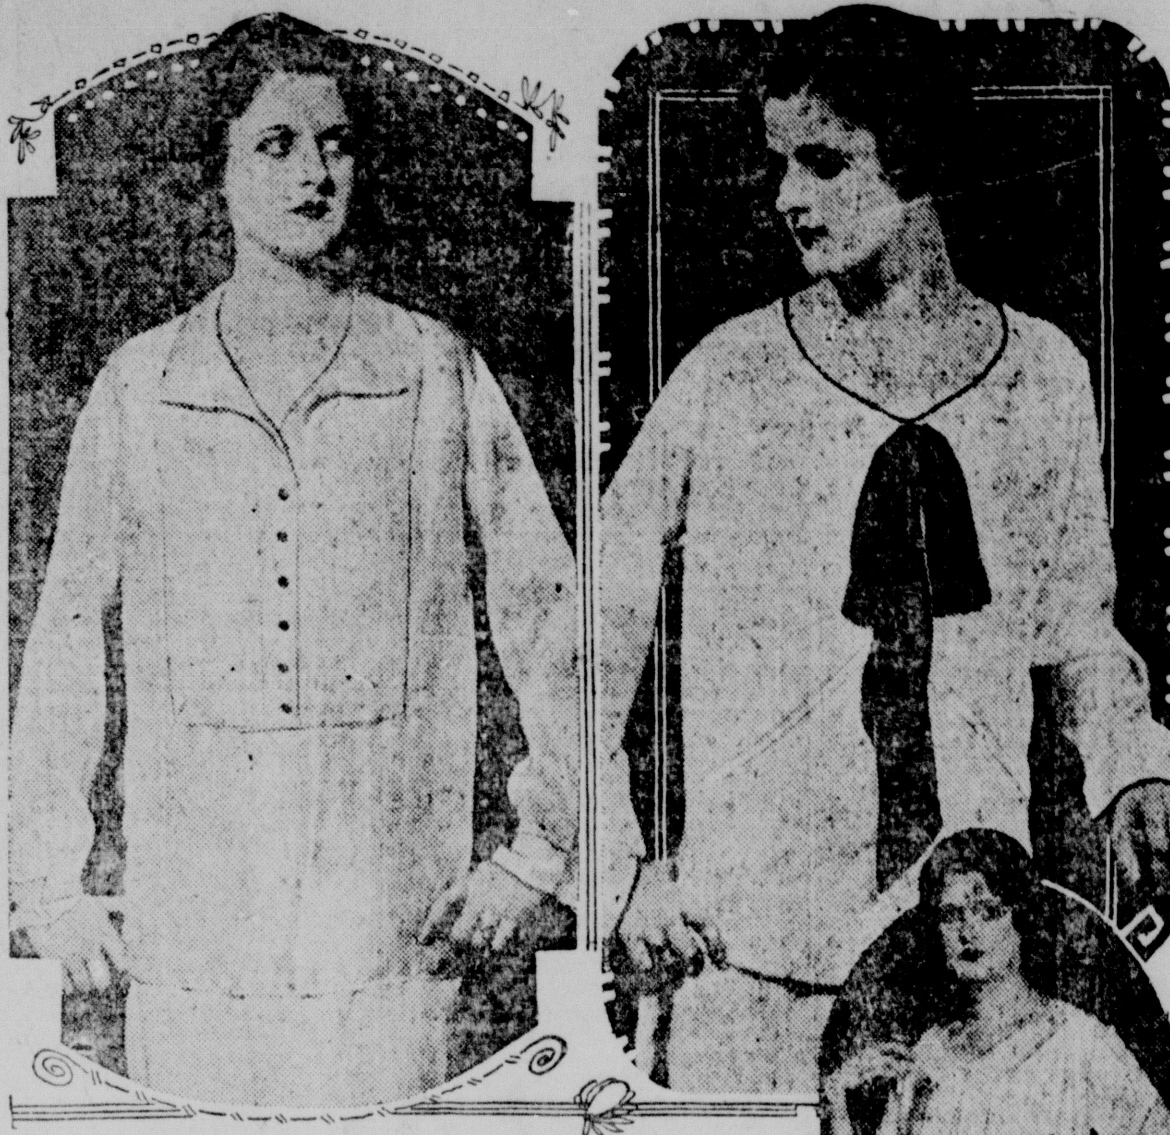

The mannequins at his exclusive establishment more than verified his words. They swept into the room, visions of loveliness, wearing these creations with simple pleated silk or plain white skirts, giving the effect of an entire costume rather than a blouse and skirt.

Distinctive Model

Of all it seemed to me the most youthful one was the white crepe de chine model with the black satin Windsor tie.

"The vest effect cut in V-shape in front and the new sleeve are worthy of particular attention," Bendel pointed out. "The smart sleeve is as loose as a sack, always caught back in some manner—in this case with the black satin binding the loose ends which may be tied the tightness desired by the wearer."

The very short sleeve is popular too as is shown in the photograph of three soft white satin model trimmed with bands of white georgette crepe set in with a row of double stitching

Strictly tailored but very feminine is the other style of white satin with black buttons and the sleeves are made snug about the wrist by black buttons.

"The particular advantage of the modern overblouse," Bendel explained "is that it can be adapted to all types of figures. A tall woman is quite often much more graceful in a longer type of blouse that conforms to her own long lines. The short woman will find the shorter models more kind to her figure."

May be Belted

"If desirable the blouse may be belted, and the belt may be placed high or low, according to the figure of the wearer. The short woman will keep her costume all in one color, but the tall and slender woman may contrive as many contrasts of colors of material as she likes."

"While white, with touches of black prevails as the most popular combination for these blouses, they have infinite possibilities in plain printed and plaid and striped fabrics."

"To the woman who dresses on a limited income, but who wishes to be unlimited as to effect, I advise her to make the overblouse the pillar of her wardrobe."

Is that dull, constant backache making you old and miserable? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going? Do you suffer headaches, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, feel weak, tired and worn-out? Then look to your kidneys. Delay may mean serious kidney sickness. Use Doan's—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's are recommended by Dixon folks.

Mrs. A. Bates, 506 W. 1st St., Dixon, says: "Bearing down pains in the small of my back bothered me when I first got up in the morning. I just felt lame and stiff all over. Catches across my kidneys felt like the edge of a knife sticking me and made me feel all out of sorts. The kidney secretions were scanty. After using Doan's Doan's Pills I was soon rid of the trouble."

PREPARING BILL FOR SYSTEM OF PARKS IN STATE

Friends of Landscape Back Move to Preserve Scenery.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—A movement to endow Illinois with state parks which will preserve for future generations the native landscape and wild life "which now is disappearing before the ruthless march of commercial progress," is well under way according to Jens Jensen, president of "The Friends of Our Native Landscape." An organization which is backing legislation directed toward that end.

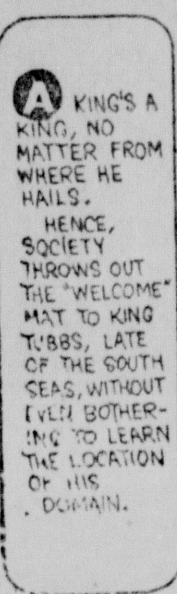

A bill incorporated the ideas of those actively interested in the establishment of state parks has been prepared and will be introduced early in the present session, Jensen said. His organization, he added is "interested in conserving whatever is left of wild beauty in Illinois or anywhere else in America."

A park and forest policy devised by Jensen and his associates has been sent to every member of the house and senate and replies have been received indicating that many of the lawmakers expect to support the idea.

Dixon is in the list. In addition to the state organization, the park movement will have the support of numerous groups of individuals in all parts of the state, Jensen says. He listed Warren, Savanna, Rockford, Freeport, Dixon, Rock Island, Moline and Havana as cities in which the state park idea has attracted especially large followings.

Locations of the parks which the state will be urged to provide are to be restricted, Jensen declared, "to such areas as are of scenic beauty and come within our idea of parks; in other words lands unfit for agricultural use."

CARS COLLIDE UPON HIGHWAY NEAR HALDANE

Forreston Woman is Badly Injured in Auto Mishap.

Forreston, Ill., Jan. 19.—Mrs. Theodore Becker, 53, suffered two broken collar bones, severe scalp wounds and possible internal injuries Sunday afternoon when a Ford sedan in which she was riding crashed into another car at an intersection on Route 26, near Haldane.

Mrs. Becker was accompanied by her husband, a daughter, Marguerite and two grandchildren. With the exception of slight bruises sustained by Mr. Becker, all escaped injury.

Shrubby Obstructs View. A Freeport driver coming south on the state road crashed into the Ford, the view of both drivers being obstructed by shrubbery. Both cars were badly damaged.

The Freeport man assisted in caring for the injured woman who was taken to Forreston and attended by Drs. Akins and Overfield. She will recover unless complications develop, according to an announcement made by physicians today.

Albany Man Lost Foot When Tree Crushed Him

Albany, Ill., Jan. 16.—Frank Deiss of Albany is in a serious condition in a Clinton, Iowa, hospital as a result of the amputation of his right foot following an accident which occurred when a tree which he had been chopping fell unexpectedly and struck him, crushing his foot.

Mr. Deiss was felling trees in the Naftzger Bros' timber when injured. The bones in his foot were crushed to a pulp. He was taken to a Clinton hospital and the foot was amputated. The outcome is not yet certain as the patient is not a very rugged man and complications are feared.

PHONE COMPANIES CAN ISSUE BONDS TO REPAIR LINES

State Commerce Body Announces Policy Toward Storm Damages.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—Telephone companies in Illinois will be granted permission to issue bonds or notes in order to repair damage by the December storm, the Illinois Commerce Commission announced today in a blanket order issued on application of the Illinois Telephone Association.

The order, which is a statement of policy, announces that the commission will authorize, upon individual application, the issue of emergency bonds or notes, to repair the damages, and a horizontal increase in rates, not to exceed 25 cents per station per month to retire the bonds.

This order makes it possible for any company that has suffered damage from the storm to obtain permission to issue bonds and notes without the usual delay and hearings, the blanket order declaring the policy to be followed in such matters.

"Not all of the companies in the state suffered damage in the storm, and it is possible that a great many of the companies that did suffer slight damage will not seek permission to issue emergency bonds," Jay G. Mitchell, secretary of the Telephone Association said. "All of the companies that are members in the Association signed the blanket petition because the association, not being incorporated, could not petition as a corporation, but many of the companies that signed the petition will not apply for the privileges it grants. On the other hand, any telephone company in the state that suffered damages, whether it is a member of the association or not, apply for permission to issue bonds."

The order does not indicate the nature of the bonds to be issued, but it is expected that they will run from ten to twenty years.

Conference on Cause and Cure of War Continues

Washington, Jan. 20.—Another round of addresses with the causes of war as their main theme formed the program today for the second session of the conference on the cause and cure of war.

John Foster Dulles, New York lawyer and former member of the reparations committee and supreme economic council, discussing "economic motives and how they lead the way" and Vice Chairman Culbertson of the United States Tariff Commission, with the topic of "raw materials, markets and war," were among the list of speakers.

In a paper prepared for the forenoon session, Mr. Culbertson declared the raw materials of the world should be opened to all peoples equally as a step in removing one of the primary causes of international conflict.

Advertisers Deny Any Part in New Propaganda

Washington, D. C.—In view of the approaching date of Feb. 4, set by some for the end of the world, the executive committee of the Seventh-day Adventist denomination at their headquarters in this city have put on record the following repudiation:

Whereas, A group of people having no connection with the Seventh-day Adventist church have assumed the name of this organization, and have set a date for Christ's second advent, we hereby place officially on record in the minutes of our General Conference our repudiation of all time setting and record our protest against connecting the name "Seventh-day Adventist" with this propaganda. Anew we declare to the public that throughout our history our witness to the signs of the times that show Christ's second coming near at hand, has ever been based on the Scriptural teaching that "no fthart day and hour knoweth no man."

With a total of 31,029 cases reported during 1924, the venereal diseases were far and away more prevalent than any other infection last year in Illinois, according to statistics of the state health department. Measles, which caused 20,144 cases of illness, was a poor second while the venereal diseases outnumbered such common infections as chickenpox, mumps, scarlet fever, tuberculosis and pneumonia by more than two to one. The venereal infections made up more than one-fifth of the total reports of all notifiable diseases, averaging about 85 cases daily.

DIXON CHOIR IS GIVEN PRAISE BY AMBOY HEARERS

St. Paul's Singers in Fine Rendition of Cantata Sunday.

Amboy—Scores of people were turned away from the overcrowded Amboy Methodist Church last Sunday evening when the Dixon Lutheran choir under the able direction of Mrs. E. M. Goodsell gave Geo. Nevins' most famous Cantata, "Adoration." Every number was greatly enjoyed and to the Dixon choir is due much credit for their very fine work.

The program contained many fine numbers by the entire choir including "O Come All Ye Faithful," "Sweeping Through the Arch of Night," "Softly The Starlight," "Amen, Lord, We Bless Thee," "Glory to God in the Highest" was rendered by the Ladies Chorus. In the solo work Mrs. Morris Rosebrook very ably rendered "Behold a Virgin Shall Conceive." Mr. A. E. Rawls captivated his audience by his pleasing number, Mrs. L. C. Johnson prepared the way for the climax in her selection, "And Lo, The Angel of The Lord" while in full, round, resonant tones Mrs. Louis Lord Ready carried the theme along into the appealing, plaintive strain of "O Lord Be Merciful." Following the sequence of thoughts the theme led to Mr. Roy G. Long's splendid interpretation of "The Great Awakening."

Other numbers followed the development of the plot. Before the announcement Messrs. Long and Rawls sang "A Little While." In the same preliminary section came the quartette, "In Reverent Awe and Solemn State" by Miss Eva Peterson and Mesdames Wilson, Pitzer and Dott. The quartette "And There Were Angels" by Mesdames Hurst and Goodsell and Messrs. Conrad and Frye made a very fitting climax. This was followed by a quartette and chorus, entitled, "Hushed at Length The Gracious Song" led by Mesdames Hurst and Rosebrook and Messrs. Conrad and Frye. The entire list of participants follows:—Director, Mrs. Goodsell; Organist, Miss Mary Hintz; Soprano, Misses Johnson, Peterson, Henrietta Flerschütz and Rudolph and Mesdames Hurst, Ready, Wilson, George Lambert, Linbaugh Dogwiler and Geisart, Altos Miss Florence Rudolph and Mesdames Pitzer, Rosebrook, Goodsell and Dott. Tenors, Messrs. Conrad, Barron, Elchenberg, Rawls and Bollman. Bass, Messrs. Frye and Long.

Dixon Man's Suggestion for Yoddler is Adopted

In keeping with the suggestion of Byron I. Atkinson of Dixon, a yoddlng feature will be broadcast at an early date by Radio Station WLS as a part of the R. F. D. programs scheduled every noon and evening. Mr. Atkinson has been advised. He is a member of this national agricultural organization which meets over radio from that station in much the same way as a farm bureau is conducted in community halls. The programs are in accordance with the suggestions of members who keep the secretary, J. S. Naylor, informed as to their needs in talks as well as in entertainment.

SUCH IS LIFE

"Eighteen years ago I had three ribs broken; fourteen years ago my right leg; eleven years ago I nearly went over with typhoid fever and since then have had awful stomach and liver trouble. Was filled with gas most all the time. I would have colic attacks so bad as to become unconscious. No medicine helped me and doctors advised an operation. One day talking with a stranger he recommended Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which helped me at once." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—Adv.

Yankees Face Barrier
With Team of Veterans

New York, Jan. 21—(By The Associated Press)—The 1925 renewal of the American League classic will see the New York Yanks facing the barrier with veteran blood in their veins and their manager, Miller Huggins up. Actually the same team which faltered in the stretch during the 1924 running will take the track this year, supported by Urban Shocker, recently acquired from St. Louis. Steve O'Neil, former Cleveland and Boston catcher, and the usual amount of brush talent.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, Jan. 21—Secretary Harry Eubank of the Amateur Athletic Union, in selecting his all-American, all-collegiate and all-school boy track and field teams for the Spalding Athletic Almanac, appears to have departed from his policy of choosing from past performances, for four men appear where Loren Murchison ruled alone in the dashes a year ago.

Only nine whose names were mentioned in the last previous selections are returned to their positions and Bob Legendre of the Newark A. C. and Harold Osborn of the Illinois A. C. are the only athletes named for two events on the all-American team. Charles Brookins, Jole Ray, Clarence Demar, Willis Plant, Irving Reed, Tom Lieb and Fred Tootell retain the positions for which they were chosen in 1924. Among the selections for the All American team are: One mile run—Raymond B. Buker, Illinois A. C.

Rickard Plans Elimination Tourney of Light Heavies

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, Jan. 21—Tex Rickard has planned a series of boxing bouts to settle the light heavy-weight question with Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., Tiger Flowers of Atlanta and Paul Berlenbach of Astoria, L. I., as the principles. Flowers and Berlenbach, both of whom have been knocked out by Delaney, will meet on February 26 and Delaney will encounter the winner in March.

Rickard believes an unquestioned candidate for the honors of the class now held by Mike McTigue can thus be produced.
Berlenbach and Young Marullo of New Orleans will clash at Madison Square Garden on January 30 and February 13. Delaney will meet Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo in a return engagement. Slattery defeated the Bridgeport man on points late in 1924. The survivor in this series may look forward to an outdoor contest with either McTigue or Gene Tunney, the American champion.

The new leader is an accurate forward passer, punter and a good ground gainer and is expected to prove a capable pilot for the Lutherans in their 1925 campaign.

Fourteen men were awarded grid letters for last season and only one of the veterans will be lost for the 1925 team, which promises to be one of the strongest squads in the Little Nineteen conference next season.

MOTHERS' VISION BRINGS MERCY TO DAUGHTER WHO KILLED HER

BY HAROLD MATSON
NEA Service Writer

San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 21—"Blood, though it sleep a time, never dies"—That unexplainable something which unites and holds us to those we love is being exemplified in the case of Dorothy Ellingson.

Dorothy killed her mother so she would be free to lead a life of "jazz" and hilarity—her father and brother spurned her.

"She should hang!" the brother said as he and his father turned their backs on Dorothy at the coroner's inquest.

But blood runs thicker than water—and Dorothy has been reunited with her father and brother—all because the mother spirit returned to the dreams of her son, and pleaded for kindness for the daughter who had killed her.

The reconciliation of Dorothy with her father and brother was one of the most dramatic in police annals.

Brother Hugs Her
Her brother Earl, six foot Viking, picked Dorothy up in his arms and rocked her as a baby, while father, unable to speak, clung to their arms.

"At first I hated her," Earl said, "but mother came to me like a vision and asked pity for her. Father and I will do everything possible for her defense."

Though the reconciliation with her father and brother has somewhat dampened her spirit, Dorothy, like a is excitedly interested in all the public debate who has scored a success, he attention that is hers.

She is up early in the morning to prepare her tawny hair and to repress her heavy lips. Her appetite is keen and she asks for ham and eggs, toast and coffee.

Dorothy smiles at photographers, even though they ask her to look serious.

She pens a poem for the newspapers and explains that it isn't all original, that she wrote some of the lines from memory.

Dorothy talks generally of life. Her philosophy is "I want to have a good time."

She makes no complaint, manifests little remorse and owns no pity, either for others or for herself.

She started young in life to exact pleasure as she understands pleasure. That which stood in her way she removed.

Shoots Mother—Off to Party
That is why, when her mother warned her that another late party would bring dire consequences, who shot her mother and went about her way—to another party.

What makes it possible for her to be so brazen and merciless? Her background is ordinary. There was no poverty. Her father and mother quarreled and separated over Dorothy herself.

The brother, Earl, estranged himself when the girl, at the age of 12, started associating with men. If there was strife in her family it was the effect of her waywardness rather than his cause.

Scientists say she is a moron: that she inherits abnormality perhaps two or three generations back.

But while scientists discuss her, while newspapers editorialize and call her the jazz-girl, while preachers talk of Dorothy the immoral, she rest easily in her cell.

Laughs With Life
Only the reconciliation with her father and brother moved her—and then only for the moment.

Dorothy, abnormal in her pose and in her sense of romance and subnormal in sense of love and responsibility, is yet laughing with life.

She is the prima donna of her own tragedy.

SAY STRIKE OF MINERS WILL BE BIG FAILURE

Predictions Made That Officials Will Not Call Walkout.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 21—Confidence was expressed by union leaders today that the threatened strike of the 60,000 anthracite miners in district number 1, United Mine Workers embracing the upper section of the hard coal fields, would not materialize. Should a general walkout be ordered by the grievance committee, which are meeting here today to take action on the proposition in defiance of International President John L. Lewis and district officials, the union leaders said it would be a failure.

Practically all of the 90 locals in the district were said by District President Cappellini to have voted yesterday to oppose the call for a general strike. Delegates in nearly every instance, Mr. Cappellini declared, were instructed to vote against a walkout at the meeting of the grievance committee today. With the exception of the locals embracing the 11,000 strikers of the Pennsylvania Coal Company and the Halstead Colliery of the Glen Alden Coal Company, the district president asserted that every local in the district would stand by the union leaders and oppose the strike.

Neal J. Perry, chairman of the special commission appointed by President Lewis to investigate the situation in the Pittston field, in a statement last night, said the action of the grievance committee in calling a meeting for the purpose of issuing a general strike order was not that of loyal members of the United Mine Workers.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN
By BEAUNASH
Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Stripes! Stripes! Stripes!

You might as well try to serve roast beef to a vegetarian as to attempt to press many a style upon many a man. He will have none of it and that's the end of it. And it's a good thing that this is thus. For, a man's dress should be a reflection of his character and make-up—conservative if he feels that way; audacious if he is so minded. Americans, unlike Europeans, will never learn to dress as a type. They want to make the "I" and "My" of personality count. They are not content to look as alike as many beads threaded upon a single string. They all have independent ideas and this is the land that encourages them.

Take, for example, the soft felt hat with brim flipped down all around. You could not, if you offered some men the fabled "wealth of the Indies," persuade them to assume a style like that. They would most rather be scalped or shot. Other men wear it eagerly, because of that "careful carelessness" which hints of the gentleman-sportsman. It is well to be mindful, however, that this is a field fashion, not one for town and business, and that no matter how often you see a hat worn this way on the street it is not, strictly speaking, correct.

The habit of matching one article of dress with another, such as scarf and handkerchief, has become almost an obsession among some of us. It is not a bad habit, though, unless it be carried to flamboyant extremes. Stripes are now at the peak of their vogue—college, club, regimental, fraternity, blazer—and it is, therefore, quite natural that striped ribbons upon soft hats together with striped mufflers, as shown here, should commend themselves to young men and to men who mature, but do not grow old.

Here you see the studiously negligent mode of dress at its best or at its worst, according to your viewpoint. The brim of the hat is snapped down all around. The broad-striped muffler is knotted in front and stuffed straight down, instead of crossed over the chest in the conventional way. Such a type of man is often to be met at football games and sporting meets in winter. He is symptomatic of the tendency toward "careful carelessness."

DAN PARRY'S DAUGHTER

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Finding the lifeless bodies of his two partners at their gold-mining camp, Harry Gloster flees southward, knowing that he will be accused of the crime. On the way, Gloster is jailed after getting into a fight with several men over a girl, Joan Harry, daughter of a famous rider of the old plains helps Gloster escape. Later Joan, in quest of Gloster, falls in with a bandit gang in the mountains. Joe MacArthur, a quick-on-the-trigger scoundrel, is made chief of the gang when he appears with a scheme to rob the Wisconsin Bank. Samuel Carney, a hank who has given MacArthur the combination to the safe, but later repents and tells the president of the bank what he has done. Gloster goes with Buck Daniels, Gloster's guardian, to the bandit camp to find the girl. She will not leave, so Gloster joins the band, too, to be near her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXX
Blood Brothers

TO Harry Gloster became a sworn member of the band.

It caused the sweat to start from every pore of his body when he learned that they were to ride that very night. But, looking down to the floor so that none of them might read the horror in his eyes, he set his teeth and decided that he would find a way of withdrawing before the actual scene of the crime to be reached.

"Go out and saddle, one by one, boys, so's Joan won't hear," went on MacArthur. "Lead your horses down through the gap and wait out there until we all are together, then we'll start."

They began to follow his commands while MacArthur drew Gloster to one side and explained to him in detail the plan for the robbery of the Wisconsin Bank. Two men at the most would be all that were needed to make an entry into the bank. But the other four would be posted at intervals here and there to guard against any possible danger. Now that Gloster was there, it meant that there were five extras.

"An easy job for you this time, Gloster," said MacArthur. "And you'll look in on your full share of the coin. You ought to be more'n ten thousand dollars to the good before morning."

Gloster nodded. After all, the thing could be managed. As MacArthur pointed out, this was an inside job and there would be virtually no risk attached to it.

He need not keep the stolen money which fell to his lot. He could simply leave it behind him at the camp when he departed. Or, better still, he could send it back to the Wisconsin Bank. He would have no actual share in the crime.

And when the good time came and he found that mysterious murderer of Nichols and Springer, he could return to the ranks of law-abiding men with a reputation unblemished. By that time, too, he should have found a way to convince Joan that she could not lead the wild life which she had chosen.

MacArthur broke in upon his thoughts. He had been watching carefully the rapid face of the new recruit.

"That's the way it always is," he said. "It's hard to take the plunge. But once you're in the water the swimming is fine."

He beckoned Gloster to him, and going to the wall he took down a bundle.

"Gloster," he said, "what you find out in this here gang is kept secret. You know that?"

"I know that."

"It ain't to be used against any man. You've sworn to 'treat the worst of us like he was your best brother."

New York—The most vulgar crowds in New York are the first night theater audiences, it seems to me.

Half of a first night audience troops in after the curtain has gone up. They talk and giggle as they walk down the aisle. They stop to greet acquaintances already seated. Many of them, especially when they are in parties of four or more, keep up a running conversation throughout the performance. There is little consideration for others intent on observing the performance.

Admissions to first nights are generally higher than for other performances. That is particularly true of musical shows. This is so because there is a certain clique which thinks that it is the "smart" thing to attend opening nights.

First night vulgarity is also displayed in dress. Last night I saw a woman in a very delectable gown in an upper box at the Century. The house was chilly and drafty. While the show was on and the house dark she put her wrap about her, but when the lights went on during intermission she laid aside her wrap and began to fan herself with an immense red ostrich fan.

And why is it that women with the ugliest bodies wear the scintillating gowns? Most of the back backs I saw at first nights remind me of nothing so much as great slabs of beef in butcher shops decorated with fringes of green or red.

Green, by the way, is far the most popular color for evening gowns this season.

These same people who disturb others by the late arrivals create further the murderer of his two old partners!

CHAPTER XXXI
Kiders in the Night

THIRTEEN had been no truth in the supposition of Harry Gloster that Joan had gone back to her hut to sleep as soon as he left. She had gone to the Captain, and when she was still fifty steps away he scented her coming and need to meet her like a great happy dog when it sees its master. He threw a swift circle around her, then came to a pause in front of her with his head tossed up high in the air and his eyes shining.

"They had a talk together after their own way. She whispered to him while she rubbed his nose, and he whined his reply no louder than her own hushed voice. Of him she asked her questions—where were they going? What would they see, and what would they do on the long trail which they were starting together? And then a gust of wind struck them and brought the station's head up, pointing north, and the cry of an owl blew vaguely and mournfully to them on the breeze.

That was the answer, as she had known even before she asked. They were bound north and north.

She went back to the hut, and there she sat cross-legged at the entrance like an Indian under the flap of his tent. So she saw Harry Gloster ride back in the hollow, saw him dismount in front of the cabin door, saw him stride inside.

Instantly she was up and after him, and from the outside she spied on everything that followed. She saw him holding MacArthur, and she noted with wonder and awe how impotent were the struggles of the chief in Gloster's grip. She heard the denunciation. She saw Harry Gloster tear from the earth his own "pebble" and cast the vote for his adulthood.

He had joined that crew in order that he might be near her. That was the meaning of his quiet air as he said goodbye that night.

So, with that resolution, she watched until the oath had been taken so solemnly. Then she hurried away and found the Captain, led him by the mane to her hut and beyond the farther side of it where eyes from the larger house could not perceive her, she saddled and bridled him. It was not necessary to warn him to be silent and cautious of her movements. The great horse had fallen into the very spirit of the thing. Her stealthy approach and her whispering voice had been enough to make his steps as careful as those of a stalking cat.

She had saddled him and was ready to mount when she saw a man carrying a saddle go through the starlight into the pasture. She reined the black horse into a cove and there waited. She saw the fellow—it was the familiar bulging outlines of Fatty Guinness which she recognized—saddling his horse and then riding out of the hollow. He was no sooner gone than another man went out from the cabin, and then a third.

One by one they were capturing their mounts and departing from the hollow, and the meaning of it gradually came to her. This was the reason they had retired so early that night. There was a midnight ride ahead of them. And would Harry Gloster be one of the party?

The hope that he would not was hardly born when she saw two men whose height and build showed them unmistakably to be Gloster and MacArthur, leave the door of the house and go out into the pasture. In another few moments, they were riding out of the valley. What was there that she could do?

She must simply wait until they were gone, of course. Then she could ride north as far as she pleased and before Harry Gloster and the rest came back to the mountains she would be far away beyond their ken.

WALKER IS AGAIN HEAD OF ILLINOIS LABOR FEDERATION

His Would-Be Opponent Polled But 74 Votes Against 69,107.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—John H. Walker of Springfield was re-elected president of the Illinois Federation of Labor by a vote of 69,107 against 74 for Richard J. O'Halloran whose name was not on the ballot but had been written in. The election was held last month and the results made available today.

Mr. Walker is a former president of the Illinois Mine Workers and is widely known in labor circles in which he has been a prominent leader in Illinois for many years. O'Halloran publishes a labor paper at LaSalle, Illinois, and is a former miner in the Taylorville district.

Victor A. Olander, veteran secretary-treasurer was re-elected without opposition. His vote was 69,624.

All the old vice presidents were re-elected but their positions were somewhat changed. The new vice presidents follow: First vice president: Thomas Kelly of Streator, formerly 1st vice president.

Second vice president: Al. Towers, Belleville, former first vice president.

Third vice president: J. W. Morgan, Chicago.

Fourth vice president: R. W. Rietz, Chicago, formerly eighth vice president.

Fifth vice president: J. B. Connors, Chicago, formerly second vice president.

Sixth vice president: Mary McNear, Decatur.

Seventh vice president: Emil Elmholt, Decatur.

Eighth vice president: M. J. Whalen, East St. Louis, formerly sixth vice president.

Ninth vice president: Waldo Cross, Peoria.

Mary Haney, of Chicago, was elected one of three out of five candidates for membership on the audit and credentials committee. Two men were elected and two men defeated. Miss Haney succeeds Miss Agnes Nestor who was not a candidate.

Expect Few Changes in Rules of Illinois House

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Springfield, Jan. 21.—Few changes in the rules of the 54th general assembly are expected by members of the house and senate.

The rules of order mostly are the product of experience and custom and radical departures from the codes which have governed preceding sessions have been few. The 13rd general assembly conducted its business under the rules adopted for the 52nd assembly and indications are that the rules committee of the house will recommend for this session continuance of the rules which governed the last.

Only one has been suggested, that being a proposal by the Democrats that provision be made whereby the Democratic floor leader serve as speaker of the house part of the time, the length of his term to be determined by the proportional party representation in the house. It was received with as much laughter from the Democrats as from Republicans.

Another precedent which has ripened with age and which will be followed meticulously when the lawmakers return here January 27 to resume the session, is that relating to the selection of seats by the members. The rule is that the oldest member in point of service gets first choice while the first termers come last. In the 54th session the first name called when the assignment to seats is taken up in the house will be that of David E. Shanahan, Chicago, four times speaker. The others will follow in order without regard to party.

FIFTEEN MILLION LAKE TROUT BEING HATCHED FOR ILL.

Game and Fish Warden Stratton Has Made Won- derful Progress.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 20.—Fifteen million lake trout are now being hatched at the Spring Grove hatchery according to a statement by Wm. J. Stratton, Chief Game and Fish Warden.

The Spring Grove hatchery according to Mr. Stratton, is one of the largest hatcheries in the United States and is one of the few equipped to hatch pike, pickerel, whitefish and trout by artificial means, as well as bass, crappie, sunfish and other varieties under natural conditions.

The deep water fish—whitefish and lake trout—spawn during November and early December. At this time men are put on the boats used by the commercial fishermen and as the fish are brought in, these men strip the spawn from the females. This spawn is carefully washed, packed in ice and delivered to the hatchery at Spring Grove.

The eggs are fertilized and spread in a thin layer in trays one inch deep, eighteen inches long and twelve inches wide. These trays are stacked seven deep in a large tank. Pure spring water is kept flowing through this tank during the entire period of incubation, which is about three or four months for lake trout.

When the hatch is completed, the baby fish are fed for about two weeks and then are released in Lake Michigan and the deep inland lakes of northern Illinois. When this work is completed, the hatching of pike is begun. These fish spawn in April, thus making a continuous operation of the hatchery possible.

Mr. Stratton has not only more than doubled the number of fish turned out at Spring Grove during his term as Chief Game and Fish Warden, but has constructed five additional hatcheries in other sections of the State. He has also increased the distribution of fish to the streams and lakes of Illinois from fifteen cars per year to 120 cars in 1924.

Floating Bottle Still Survives After Eleven Rough Years at Sea

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 1.—Eleven years ago Capt. J. B. Moore, the land- lord of a hotel here, was in charge of a motor ketch Fort Church- hill when the vessel was caught in a blizzard at Port Perique Bay, on the Labrador coast.

Thinking that his ship was doomed and that the crew would perish, the captain enclosed farewell messages in a bottle and threw them overboard. After he had done this it was found possible to beach the vessel and all lives were saved.

Capt. Moore has now received word from the Hudson Bay Company to the effect that the bottle with the mes- sages has been washed up on an is- land at Labrador.

German Capital Crowded With Cabarets, Theaters

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Berlin—There are today so many places of amusement in the German capital that they interfere with each others' business, and but few of them do well financially. Most marked in recent years has been the development of the opera and the revue. While before the war Berlin had two operas, it now has four; while it boasted of one revue in 1914, six are now com- peting with each other.

Not included in the 51 theaters run- ning today are the movie houses and the cabarets. There were hardly any cinemas in Berlin before the war; now there are 330 of them, supplying for the most part American films. In 1914 the idea of a cabaret was associated with but two institutions, the Lin- den and the "Black Cat." Now there are 62 of them. When a restaurant has difficulty in maintaining itself, it promptly installs a cabaret in the hope of attracting guests.

Berlin counts also six vaudeville houses and 11 dance palaces.

Thought Argentina Sounded Dangerous

London.—(By the Associated Press)
The Prince of Wales was amused at a meeting of the League of Mercy re- cently when Lady Tree told a story, illustrating the ignorance of some quarters of London of parts of the earth outside the British empire.

While looking at an electric news sign in Trafalgar Square, Lady Tree said she heard a girl say to her man friend:

"The Prince is going to visit Argenti- na. What's he going to see her for?"

The disdainful reply was: "He's not a she—he's the captain of the All Blacks."

The All Blacks are a visiting and all-conquering team of New Zealand football players.

Filipinos in Hawaii Display Prosperity

Honolulu—The industrial and finan- cial progress of Filipinos in Hawaii has reached the point where the es- tablishment here of a bank with cap- italization of $100,000 by Filipinos seems advisable, asserts Cayetano Ligot, Philippines resident labor com- missioner, in his first annual report to Governor-General Leonard Wood.

Commissioner Ligot declares that the method of paying Filipinos on Ha- waiian plantations is equitable, that living conditions on the whole are good, managers are showing a spirit of fairness to employees, and the Fili- pines can save and are saving consid- erable sums each month. Between $600,000 and $800,000 is sent back to the Philippines annually by laborers here, and other large sums are held in Hawaii as further savings.

London Fashions Show Military Hats for Women

London.—(By The Associated Press)
—The smart four gallon busby that tops off the full dress uniform of British guardsmen, and delights the feminine contingent that never fails to be interested in the picturesque ceremony of guard mount at Bucking- ham Palace, has been copied by Lon- don milliners in a miniature bearskin hat that promises to be popular at the winter style shows. The new hat fits closely over the ears and is held in place by regulation military chin straps.

Another innovation for the winter, this time in footwear, is the use of ostrich skin for shoes. The skins are dyed brown and the holes from which the feathers have been plucked as- sume a deeper shade, adding an ef- fective decoration. One London boot- maker has been showing shoes made from walrus hide, and is experiment- ing with the skin of the rayfish, which he thinks will prove successful for footwear.

THEY'RE PARTICULAR.

LONDON.—Animals born in London zoos must not be named "Bob," "Prince," "Billy," "King" or any other such common names, authorities have ruled. The infant animal must be given distinctive names that will set them apart from the prosaic titles be- stowed upon their four-legged ances- tors.

Total fees collected by the office of Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson during 1924 amounted to $16,235,965.58 an increase of approximately $2,000,000 over total collections for 1923 ac- cording to a report of the business of the office for 1924 issued today.

The cost of operation of the office during 1924 was seven per cent of total collections while the automobile department is operated at four per cent, a lower cost than any similar department in the United States. Hurlingham Club to Entertain American Army Polo Players

London, Jan. 2.—The Hurlingham Polo Club has invited representatives of the American army to be guests of the club during their stay in England next year, says "Polo Monthly."

"It is expected," says the magazine, "that the American army team will arrive in England in May, and great interest will attach to their matches against the British army whom they defeated so unexpectedly in the United States last year. It is at least certain that Sir Harold Snagge will spare no effort, with the assistance of Lieut. Colonel Scott-Duff, to give the Ameri- can soldiers a very agreeable time dur- ing their visit to this country. The inter-army matches at Hurlingham promise to be the most attractive fea- ture of next season's polo."

TWENTY-FIFTH INSTALLMENT

The doorknob of the Oval Chamber rattled. She saw her sister, dressed as for an occasion, descending the stairs and taking her time about it. Margaret ran up the steps, past Flora Lee without a word, and closed herself into her bedroom. Here she fought against the impulse that was always with her, a desire to cry her eyes out and lose her nerve and give up utterly.

But when she was ready for bed and the lights were out and her balcony windows open to the westward-facing moon, she did a thing which she had not done for many years. She knelt beside her bed and prayed. At first it was the Lord's Prayer, because that pure supplication, learned by rote, served as a password to a safe long closed to her. Then came her tears as she drooped with arms outstretched across the coverlet and asked brokenly, "Father in Heaven, how can I? He loves me. . . He's so good, and I've given him my promise. But how can I, Father, when I don't love him? I've tried so hard. . . But I don't. . . I don't. . ."

CHAPTER 41

Since Jo had been on duty the night before it was Admah who opened the Candy Holtz establishment next morning. He was earlier than usual, having slept feverishly, waking and tossing between dreams of an enchanted lady who came from the moon and lay against his shoulder, sighing in her sleep. In the practical light of morning her vanity case worried him. Perhaps he should have returned it the night before. Time and again he turned the foolish, expensive trifle in his hand, wondering what to do about it.

Had he cared less he would have thought nothing of running his Ford up to the Peake house, ringing at the big front door and handing the thing in to a servant with his compliments. But a memory of last night's magic aroused his self-consciousness. What if the Peake girl—the little one—should herself come to the door? Nothing could have been more suitable to his taste; he made up a number of handsome speeches with which to lay the precious square of silk in the hand which he once closed on a gift of peppermints. Then the idea would fill him with bashfulness. He couldn't do it gracefully, he felt. He knew so little about women—nice women. After his mother, Mabel Stek had been the nicest, and she, events had proved, wasn't over nice.

Down at the store, as soon as he had scolded the colored scotchman for laying his dirty mop on a new showcase, he went to the telephone and called the Peake residence. A haughty African voice answered his request for Miss Peake.

"Which Miss Peake, sub?"

"Oh." Up to then Admah had given them the simplest possible classification: the Big One and the Little One. So he thought for an instant, then asked, "How many are there?"

"There's two, sub, I reckon," said the voice. It became immediately suspicious with the question, "Who is this talkin'?"

"I'm Mr. Holtz." Then because, an uncorroborated statement greeted his explanation, he went on, "I wanted to speak to her about a purse she dropped last night in my car."

"Oh," decided the voice, and grow warmer. "That would be Miss Flo Lee."

"Well—" he cleared his throat with the awfulness of his request—"could I speak to her?"

"Miss Flo Lee? Law, Mistah Holt, she ain't outa bed yet."

"Then I'll call her later, huh?"

Come what would, Admah was determined that his conference over the lost property should be with the young lady herself. Like many another knight, he was anxious to claim a share of credit for his deed.

"She mos' generally gits up 'bout eleven o'clock, sub," explained the voice.

"I'll call her then," persisted Admah and hung up the receiver, wondering vaguely at the customs and habits of the aristocracy.

Promptly at eleven—he had laid his dollar watch on the counter in order to keep close track of the time—he went again to the telephone and asked for the Peake number. Because he was in total ignorance of what had transpired behind the Peakes' ground-glass door the previous night, how the Little One had kissed her noble fiancé, then snapped her fingers under his nose with a boast that she associated with hoodlums and could show him a few of her friends that would make his hair curl, Admah was not prepared for the surprise that greeted him that morning.

This time he had no difficulty in speaking to Miss Flo Lee.

"Oh, hello, Candy Holtz!" she cried in a tone of sweet familiarity.

"Good mawnin' ma'am," began Admah, and rummaged his poor mind for a graceful way to continue the conversation.

"I hope you didn't catch cold, lending me your coat and everything. I was real worried about you." This in her most wooing tones.

"Gosh, no," he mumbled, and was at once ashamed of the ineloquence. "I'm right tough, ma'am—I mean to say—" Stalled like his Ford on a bad road, he floundered and stopped.

"I never saw anything so sweet in my life," she assured him, wherefore he took heart to go on.

"Say, Miss Peake. I got something of yours. I reckon you thought maybe I'd skipped away with it."

"How do you think such a thing?" Her voice mellowed him like the drunkard's first glass after a night's debauch.

"Well, I've been totin' it round in my pocket—" He failed to mention the article because he wasn't sure of its name.

"Oh, my vanity case!" she cried, enraptured. "How sweet of you."

"Not at all, ma'am. It was only wonderin' should I send it round to you or would you stop in at the store—"

"Oh." Just an instant to consider, then the invitation which stopped the beating of his heart. "If it isn't too much trouble, couldn't you bring it round? I'll be here all afternoon. Suppose you come in to tea."

"I reckon so," said Admah, and glanced shyly across rows of tables, piled with diversified apparel. "I just dropped in, wonderin' if you could rig me out in somethin' nice to wear to a tea party."

CHAPTER 42

Shortly after the telephone conversation that weighed so little on Flora Lee's time and conscience San Pilar sent his peace offering in the form of orchids and one of his brief, pleasant notes to remind her that he was to lunch with her at half past one. Carlos was lavish with such reminders as were others who followed Flora Lee's broken trail.

A little after twelve, when she began dressing to receive her lord-prospect, her mind retained a more or less definite program for the day. She had asked that candy man in at four; that much was clear enough. What she was to do with him was another matter; that would come, she felt, upon the wings of inspiration. Already she was beginning to relent her mischievous plan—Carlos' orchids and his pretty note had cooled her desire for revenge. But the candy man would serve as a lesson to Bunny who must be taught not to do it again. Yes, the candy man could be made use of in some way.

Her wandering mind wavered; first she was sorry she had asked the candy man at all, then she was sorry she hadn't made a job of it and asked him in to lunch. It would have been delicious to watch poor Bunny's face when her strange guest attacked the asparagus with his knife. The picture, combined with thoughts of things she might say to stir the oddly matched rivals, tickled her to such a flurry of laughter that old Linda, who had been waiting half an hour to put her into bed, lost her temper and threatened, not definitely but volubly, Flora Lee.

But Candy Holtz go glimmering into the realm of romantic impossibilities. She turned her attention to San Pilar and what he had to offer. In a fortnight she would be off for Europe with a coronet on her wiggle and a right to do what she pleased, with Bunny's consent, of course. But she had learned to manage Bunny.

She had waited and played the game until she got just what she wanted. Money and position and a chance to get away. The Peakes, as a family, were losing their magnificence. They were borrowing feathers with which to deck their pride just a little longer; long enough to put Flora Lee on an ocean liner, and away on her foreign adventures. . . . After that the deluge of bills and foreclosures. Well, she thought with characteristic sophistry, when she was off their hands they would be free of their most expensive responsibility.

. . . She was tired of that atmosphere of impending doom; her grandfather shut away like a harmless lunatic; her father growing more hateful and pale and silent every day. Roland was engaged in with roosterous schemes for the restoration of their fortunes. . . . Roland married and living on a precarious allowance, was taking on the airs of a family head to whom Peg and Flora Lee must defer. Poor Peg! Of all the life she was about to leave Flora Lee regretted but two things, the companionship of her sister and the suave luxury of the Italian bedroom which she had inherited from her mother. . . .

With one idea in his fevered mind Admah charged so recklessly through the Grand Avenue traffic that a policeman stopped him with a polite but firm, "Careful thar, Mister Holtz!" Ordinarily the deference would have flattered his pride. But his thoughts were too busy to receive outward impressions. Tea at the Peakes? The Little One—what was her regular name? Flo Lee. The nigger at the phone had said it. Flo Lee. He put the name on his rosary and said it over and over. Funny how they'd taken a notion to each other. . . . She'd gone out of her way to be friendly. He wondered if he really had something

R. F. D. HAS HAD BIG SHARE IN PROGRESS OF UNITED STATES

Rural Mail Service a Boon to Farmers—Illinois Leads Nation.

Few institutions in the history of American progress can be credited with a more salutary effect upon the march of that progress than the Rural Mail Service of the Post Office Department.

No other single instrumentality has done more than the Rural Mail Service toward "bringing the city to the country," and relieving the prosaic existence of farm life, or has been as effective in establishing closer contact between the farmer and his markets. It has been the most important factor in making agriculture an exacting business instead of its one-time precarious classification which conveyed no broader meaning than "tilling the soil."

Twenty-nine years ago the farmer, and his wife, and children, led an existence of almost complete isolation, living upon widely scattered farms, some of them miles apart. They had comparatively little communication with their neighbors and the outside world, except that derived from weekly trips to the adjacent village. More often than not the farmer lost a full day's work and his crops were neglected in order to obtain expected mail at the village post office.

Today's Mail. In those days the farmers' mail consisted largely of communications from relatives and friends. Today the daily mail includes, usually on the very date of publication, the metropolitan newspaper, containing market reports and agricultural news; the weekly and monthly farm journals and magazines; and business letters from the village merchant and the more pretentious establishment in the distant city. All of these are now brought to his door or to the box a few yards away.

The rural carrier is the farmer's post office and his agent. Through him he conducts transactions for the sale of his live stock, grain, and other farm produce. From him he buys stamps and pays his bills by postal money order. In short, the letter carrier is the medium that has transformed the once secluded inhabitant of the rural district into a cosmopolitan citizen, conversant with current affairs and occupying a larger place in the destinies of a great nation.

Congress First Opposed. It was Postmaster General John Wamamaker who first officially suggested in 1891 the rural mail idea to Congress. The plan was fought in the legislative branch of the Government for five years before it was given a try-out.

The first bill authorizing the establishment of the service was introduced in the House by Representative James O'Donnell of Michigan January 5, 1892. It carried an appropriation of $6,000,000 but failed of passage. A year later Congress was induced to appropriate $10,000 for experimental purposes followed in 1894 by $20,000 more. Mr. Wamamaker, believing the amount insufficient even for experimental service, declined to use the money.

On January 9, 1896, $10,000 was added by Congress and on October 1, the same year the first experimental rural delivery service was established simultaneously on three routes in West Virginia, one from Charlestown, one from Uvilla, and one from Hailtown. From this small beginning, nine months later found the service operating on 82 routes emanating from 43 post offices in 29 states. Twenty-eight years later, on June 30, 1924, the Rural Mail Service had grown to 44,260 routes with a total mileage of 1,205,714.

In comparison with the insignificant appropriation of $10,000 made by Congress more than a quarter of a century ago to inaugurate the service, it now requires an annual expenditure of $89,250,000 to keep it functioning.

The first county to be completely covered by Rural Mail Service was Carroll County, Maryland, where county service was established Dec. 20, 1899. There are very few counties in the country today that are not honeycombed to the uttermost corner with free mail delivery.

By 1915, 26,980 fourth class post offices had been discontinued as a result of the extension of the Rural Mail Service. It is estimated that an annual saving of $1,613,940 was accomplished by the discontinuance of these offices while the elimination of star, or contract routes is estimated to save $3,482,670 per annum.

When the service was first inaugurated the salaries of rural carriers was only $200 a year. They may now get as much as $2,100 a year, depending on the length of the routes, while the motor routes of 50 miles or more pay salaries of $2,450 to $2,600.

Illinois Leads Nation. Under the administration of H. H. Billany, present Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, a marked increase in rural delivery facilities has been made, the number of routes climbing from 43,648 to 44,760; the mileage from 1,159,235 to 1,205,714 and the number of individuals served from 29,112,883 to 29,921,123.

Illinois leads the nation both in the number of rural routes and in mileage there being 2,637 routes covering a distance of 20,871 miles in that state. Ohio is second with 2,542 and a mileage of 63,820; Missouri third with 2,252 routes covering 56,074 miles; Iowa fourth with 2,229 routes covering 60,734 miles; Texas fifth with 2,193 routes covering 59,995 miles; Pennsylvania sixth with 2,036 and 53,385 respectively; Kansas seventh with 1,962 and 55,464 respectively; and New York eighth with 1,863 and 47,139, respectively.

German Print List of "Dollar Nobility"

Berlin.—The list of American income tax payers, recently published, has been given the title "The Almanac de Gotha of the Yankees," by Die Zeit.

"Happy the people who are in a position to pay more than $10,000 annually to the government," sighs the organ of the German industrialists. It also refers to the published list as the "Almanac of Dollar Nobility."

VAST AMOUNTS OF GOLD DISAPPEAR IN FAR-OFF LANDS

What Becomes of All the Gold Produced By All Mines of World?

By Associated Press Licensed Wire. New York.—What becomes of all the gold produced by the mines of the world, is a frequent inquiry, particularly with the growing importance of gold shipments, and the question may be answered as follows:

China, among civilized nations, which accounts for about one-fourth of the production; use in industrial arts; waste, a five-dollar goldpiece, for example, losing 1½ percent in weight after one year's use; hoarding, by which millions of dollars are mysteriously swallowed up annually among primitive peoples; and loss, as through fire, shipwreck and similar causes.

Gold mining in this country has fallen off because the industry has found it hard to turn a profit at post-war prices. The price of gold has long been fixed by the government at $20.67 an ounce. Year in, year out regardless of supply and demand, it remains "pegged" at this figure.

The purchasing value of gold, meanwhile, varies, fluctuating with price levels. An ounce of gold, economists compute, purchases perhaps only 60 percent as much now as before the war. Mine costs, in consequence, could not be realized on many lower-grade workings and many have shut down.

Yet gold the world over continues to come from the earth at a rate estimated in 1923 at about $20,000,000,000 worth a year. Gold bullion priced at $2,601,000,000 was on deposit last year in the vaults of the U. S. Assay Office in Wall Street, which is regarded as the most important clearing station in this country for monetary gold and gold used in fine arts.

At this closely-guarded crossroads from the goldfield to the bank vault, the incoming alloyed gold is melted as much as five times in refining; five to seven assays are made from samples; the whole weighed and re-weighed, checked and re-checked.

Platinum is a most valuable by-product of the refining at the Assay office. As much as 1,500 ounces of it have been recovered in 12 months, all velvet for the government, and, quoted from $250 to $300 an ounce, worth from $375,000 to $450,000.

Gold in here was bought last year from the Assay Office by American makers of fine art objects at a monthly average of $5,000,000, according to one outside estimate. The Director of the Mint from such data as he had available, calculated the gold used in industry in the calendar year 1923 was $69,292,245, of which $40,013,175 was new material.

The Far East and Africa are held responsible for the disappearance of much of the world's gold. India is called "a great sink for the precious metal," and in the last half century it is estimated to have made away with at least one and one-half billion dollars in gold. Gold is used there in decoration, ornaments and textiles and hoarded and buried by owners who die, in many cases, without revealing the location of their caches. This drain is put at several million dollars annually.

China is said to be even more of a sponge for gold, while in Africa the gold paid in wages to Kaffir laborers at the mines goes with them to their kraals and somehow never return, it is said. Trading posts well in the heart of the Dark Continent also report a lively demand for gold coins of whatever currency. Native chiefs, headmen and even braves covet the shining tokens to lavish upon their women for coin necklaces and bangles.

Shipwrecks withdraw an amount of gold that can only be guessed. Divers a year ago recovered $30,000,000 in gold bars from the White Star liner Laurentic which was torpedoed off the coast of Ireland during the war. Wall Street itself has outfitted several expeditions even now on the high seas in quest of sunken treasure.

Sweden's Armament Plan May Be Upset

Stockholm, Jan. 1.—Plans of deputies to the Swedish Parliament to bring forward measures to reduce armaments and to cut expenses for national defense, may not be carried out, according to political observers, because of the renewed anxiety felt here in regard to the intentions of Soviet Russia.

The recent uprising in Esthonia is one of the circumstances which is causing concern to the proponents of disarmament. Another is the lack of certainty as to what disposition the Russian government will make of the so-called Wrangel fleet confiscated by the French government in French colonial waters, which, it is stated, will be turned over to the Soviet government. If these ships are kept in the Baltic, it is understood that Sweden will maintain a force of four large war vessels in Baltic waters.

NAUGHTY NAUGHTY FOND PARENT—I wish you would give up smoking, Bobby. BOBBY—But it doesn't hurt me any. "But you are too young to play with matches."—Washington Dirge.

"WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM." This is a promise that has been faithfully kept. The 1925 models prove this.

When you get the car and we get the money a Buick sale is only started "not finished." Our interest goes with each car and stays with it—We invite comparison as to both the car and our service after sale—it will pay you to BUY IN DIXON.

MILLIONS TO SEE PHENOMENON THEY WILL NEVER AGAIN

Partial Eclipse of Sun Here Saturday to Be of Big Interest.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Washington—Millions of Americans will see, on Saturday, something they probably never will see again, a total eclipse of the sun in some places and a partial eclipse over the greater part of the United States. There will not be another in more than a century.

Those who live within a belt 100 miles wide and 5,000 miles long ranging from northern Minnesota across northern Wisconsin and Michigan, the Great Lakes to New York, Long Island, Connecticut and Rhode Island, parts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Massachusetts—will see the flaming sun blotted out in the morning of the twenty-fourth. Those who live near this path across the country—a path that ends at sunset near the north of Scotland—will see the sun shadowed in part, the extent depending on how near they live to this belt.

In Duluth, Buffalo, New York City, New Haven and many other large cities, the eclipse will be total. The partial eclipse will be very large, nearly total, in some of the largest cities including Boston, Providence, Albany, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Chicago. As far south as New Orleans, and as far west as St. Louis and Omaha, the partial eclipse will be large.

In most of the central states the sun will rise more or less eclipsed, but from Lake Erie eastward, all of the eclipse will take place after the sun has risen.

In New York City the total eclipse will take place about 9:10 a. m. and the time of the greatest eclipse for most of the cities in the east that keep Eastern Standard Time will not vary but a few minutes from that. The partial eclipse will begin about eight o'clock in the same section and the eclipse will be over about half-past ten.

When the eclipse becomes total the brighter stars and planets appear and also the beautiful solar corona that the astronomer is so anxious to study. This is a magnificent halo of pearly light extending to a great distance from the sun and different in shape and appearance at every eclipse, says a special bulletin of the American Nature Association. It is never visible except during a total solar eclipse and can be studied only at that time because its light is so faint that the glare of sunlight in the daytime hides it from view. It is only when the moon obligingly comes between sun and earth and shuts out the light of the sun that the corona shines forth in all its wonderful beauty.

All those who find themselves within the path of total eclipse should look out for the shadow bands, wavy bands of light and shade that fit over the landscape and buildings just before and after the total eclipse," says the bulletin.

They should look out for the interesting phenomenon known as "Baily's Beads," which are seen as thin, thread-like solar crescent breaks up into beads of light as the total eclipse is about to begin and which are seen again just as it ends.

Look also for the scarlet solar prominences during the total eclipse which are flames of glowing gases of hydrogen and helium rising from the hidden surface of the moon to heights of thousands of miles and visible beyond the edges of the moon in queer forms and shapes.

"The brighter stars and planets appear during the total eclipse, and even a little before and after it. The three planets, Venus, Mercury, and Jupiter, should be seen in a close group some distance to the southwest of the sun. But above all else do not fail to make the most of your opportunities to observe the wonderful and mysterious corona which can never be seen except when the sun is totally eclipsed and which very few people ever have the good fortune to see.

"Although the event of this one-day dwarfs all others by comparison in the January skies, it is in midwinter that evening skies are at their best, the American Nature Association points out. There are more brilliant stars in view than at any other time of the year, sparkling more when the denser air is cold and frosty. If one could look at the stars outside of the earth's atmosphere, he would find that they do not sparkle at all but shine with a clear, steady light.

"We would see the stars in the daytime, too, as well as at night, for it is the atmosphere that scatters the light of the sun and makes the glare of light all over the sky that hides the stars from view by day. If we could do our star-gazing from the moon, we would be surprised to find the sky thickly studded with stars in the daytime, for on the moon there is little, if any, air."

The development of the window glass industry in Belgium is reflected in the total October sales of 30,000,000 square feet, as against a capacity production of 25,000,000 with all furnaces fired.

COMMUNITY COOPERATION GETS RESULTS

The good old United States, which cover less than six per cent of the earth's area and contain only about five per cent of the earth's population, produces:

76 per cent of all the corn
70 per cent of all the cotton
72 per cent of all the oil
59 per cent of all the coal
43 per cent of all the iron
37 per cent of all the silver
26 per cent of all the wheat
21 per cent of all the gold and possesses over 34 per cent of all the wealth in the world.

This wonderful achievement was made possible only by community enterprise and co-operation. It is the total results attained in these particular industries by the people of the communities in which they were produced, i. e., mining communities, oil producing communities, and farming communities.

We not only want to thank the miners, of the different mining communities, for the great mining productions recorded above, but we must also give due credit to all those who co-operated in the production of these products.

Just so with farming; we must not only thank the farmer for the great corn and wheat productions recorded, but also those of the different farming communities whose energy and co-operation was necessary to build and stabilize this mammoth industry.

All the people of a community are interdependent in the broadest sense of the word. The smaller cities, towns and villages throughout the country are absolutely necessary to the welfare and progress of the different communities which go to make up the nation.

To the merchants, particularly, of these smaller cities, towns and villages great credit is due for their untiring efforts and co-operation in furthering manufacturing, mining, agricultural and other interests in their community.

Millions of dollars have been invested by these merchants in local stock companies for manufacturing purposes and in prospecting locally for oil, gas, coal, lead, zinc, etc. Other millions of their money have been used, without interest, in extending credit to community folks who were hard pressed at some time or another.

Still other millions have been given away by them in factory bonuses and as a stimulus to the farmer for better farm products.

There is probably not a single community throughout the great agricultural and stock-raising sections of the country where the local merchants have not contributed thousands of dollars in cash prizes and premiums in their efforts to advance these industries to the highest possible standard.

Agricultural fairs, stock shows, horse shows, corn carnivals, etc., were inaugurated and financed almost entirely by the merchants of the community in which they were held. And this was done solely for the purpose of increasing quantity and quality of that community's products.

It would be an absolutely safe assertion to say that no class of business men in the country have done more to promote progress, prosperity, harmony and fraternalism than the retail merchants. They are asked to donate to nearly every fair or bazaar held by the different churches; every fair or carnival of the local fraternal orders; every homecoming or gala week; every pure food demonstration; every charitable affair, etc., etc., and it is very seldom that they have not been able to contribute.

Community co-operation works wonders with any city or town. It brings new industries and business development of all kinds—more factories, more people, more homes, more public utilities; better railroad service; better express and mail service; better stores, office buildings, churches, schools, hospitals, better roads, and streets, better theaters with better class of amusements to keep the young folks from drifting away. Real estate and farm values are much better in a live, thrifty, energetic community than in a sleepy, dreamy or dead one.

It is very easy to understand how mail order trading will kill progress and prosperity. It takes away the very things that stimulate each community to bigger and better things. It destroys the spirit of co-operation and robs the people of all interest and pride in the community—the very thing which made the good old U. S. A. what it is today.

Do you know that mail order trading is even robbing us of the good old county fairs which we always looked forward to, many of us perhaps with the hope of bringing home a blue ribbon or two? Do you know that mail order trading is responsible for the stagnation of many a once thriving town or village with the consequent depreciation of real estate and farm values?

Mail order trading undermines the very foundation of these smaller cities and towns. It kills that great spirit of "I will" which of them. Why, then, should anyone retard or destroy this wonderful progress by killing community interests and co-operation

ISADOR EICHLER

112 West First Street Dixon, Illinois

THE Hartebeest or Bubalis is
The name by which it's kno
From hoof up to its shoulder it
Is five feet tall when grown.
It roams around in Africa
On open plain and slope.
It's just another of the types
Of larger antelope.

THE busy little sparrow chirps
And hops the livelong day.
Whenever people frighten him
He's quickly on his way.
His feathers are a dull-like gray
From tip of tail to head.
He'll hang around your doorstep if You'll throw him crumbs of bread.

THE wee canary sings all day,
And hops around in glee.
His actions indicate that he Is happy as can be.
Folks keep him in a little cage--
This harmless little fellow.
He's quite a sight to look at with
His feather coat of yellow.

YOU'VE often heard Pol Parrot
As he chattered in his cage.
He's sometimes very pleasant, then Again he's in a rage.
He loves to dine on sunflower seeds.
It's fun to watch him eat them.
He listens to the words you say
And often will repeat them.

THE Partridge is a pretty bird,
Of mainly brown and red,
With spots of black and buff and white
From tips of tail to head.
It builds its nest upon the ground
And lives on seeds and clover.
The drum effect this flyer sings
Just makes him shake all over

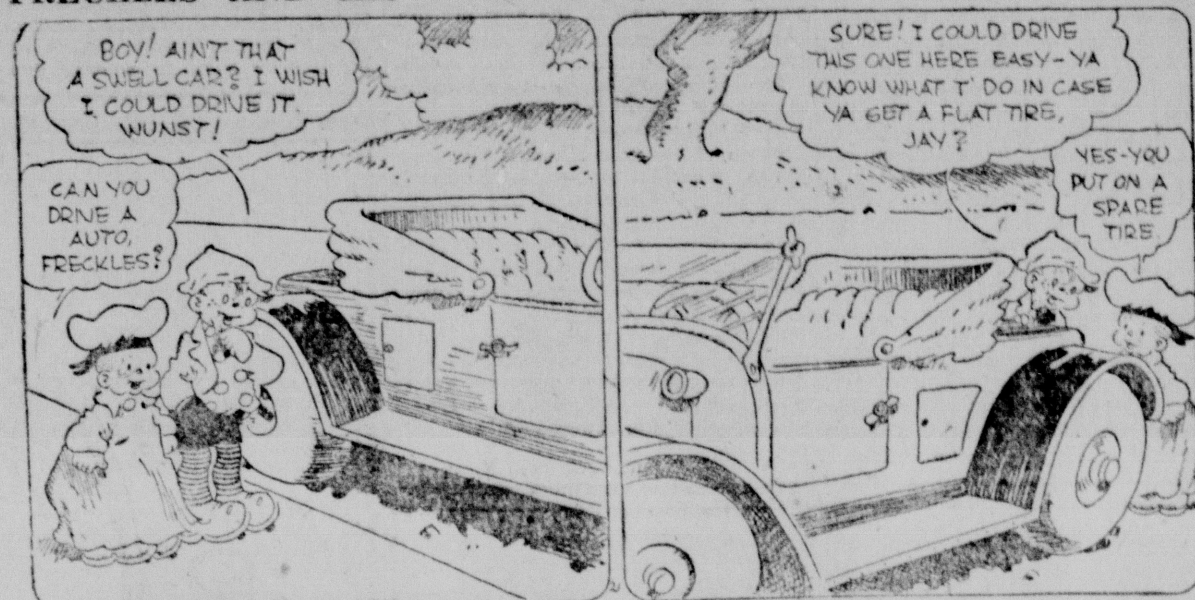

PASSING BY

LET'S ride in a train for a moment or two, and gaze at the things that pass. Let's leisurely look at the overhead blue and drink in the green of the grass.
The work is of nature; the job is well done. There's restfulness blanketed wide. What joy to just look at things under the sun as we whiz on through space in our ride.
Ah, there is a hut that is lost in the trees. Perhaps it's a tumble-down shack. But happy are folks who are dwelling in these, with only the sky at their back.
A youngster is roaming a long winding lane, with fish pole and line as a rule. He lingers and stares at the whizzing-by train; then travels along to his pool.
The open and wide has a call of its own. It's only yourself that you rob if never you live to the country, alone, and rest, far away from the mob.

Nappin' Time

THE graphophone stilled and the whole house is quiet. A pin drop could easily be heard. A short time ago was the whole place a riot. It's certain that something's occurred.
The door bell is stuffed so it simply can't ring. All callers are forced now to rap. What is it that all of this quiet can bring? Why baby is taking a nap.
The wee little darling is tucked into bed and is buried in slumberland deep. Of all sorts of noise mother has a strong dread since she's pckabied baby to sleep.
The care of a youngster, of course, is a strain, ut you'll always find mother on tap. She's sure y entitled to rest she can gain when the tiny it's taking a nap.
